G. I. Summary Of World News BY SGT. O. J. REMINGTON

ROMANCE AND WAR appear to go hand in hand. At least, the country clerks of more than 2,000 counties in this land of ours have been called upon to write considerably more licenses to wed during 1942 than any other year in history.

NEWS WAS looking up for others besides the county clerks and parsons, too, as the War progressed.

Best news comes from Russia, where the Russians are busy as bees picking off the remnants of the great Nazi army that not so long ago was besieging Stalingrad. The job ought to be finished soon, harring unforseen happenings.

At the same time, the Russians continue advances in the all-vital oil regions of the Caucasus and as far as that goes, practically all along the long-extended Russian front.

From present indications, the Russian drive is high gear and seems to be rolling along even better than the winter campaign last year. Question—How much will the present Russian drive be out of the German armed might? Upon that question may hinge coming summer operations of the United Nations.

IN EUROPE itself, the might of the Axis continues to be used against German industrial areas. Terrific heavy raids upon the heart of Berlin, with weak Nazi retaliation upon London, appears significant so far. British announce that anti-aircraft fire protecting the German capital "is weak."

In Africa, Allied forces again are on the advance, with Tripoli, last stronghold of Mussolini's once vast African empire, being threatened.

The Japs now appear to have opened another round in the Pacific. They have taken Guadalcanal Island. American positions were being bombed heavily but the Americans still were holding. Guadalcanal is a foothold despite desperate efforts which have cost them very heavily in men and ships as well.

Along the Pacific to deliver bomb blows on Burma, located in New Guinea. Our airplanes also have intercepted destroyers that apparently were setting out to make a landing on Guadalcanal.

ALONG THE domestic front, considerable headway is being made in a drive for the "Rum Plan," which would put personal income taxes on a pay-as-you-go basis by skipping and substituting a direct method of collecting for current expenses.

President Roosevelt has asked Congress to provide supplemental appropriation of $4,000,000,000 for the maritime commission's expansion of merchant shipbuilding program.

The President's budget message to Congress forecasted that the total expenditures of $106 billion in the fiscal year 1944, and called for $16 billion in new collections by taxation, savings or both. Proposed war taxes for 1944 were set at $106 billion. War expenditures for 1942, as released by OWI, totaled more than $32 billion—3.6 times the amount spent in 1941—but at the end of the year, they were running at an annual rate of about $74 billion.

Emphasizing that methods of taxation should be determined by Congress, the President asked Congress to put taxpayers on a pay-as-you-go basis, simplify the tax system, and effect certain reforms in the tax structure. Specifically, these reforms would include changes in the depletion-of-reserves provisions, extension to all income of the present limitation of $25,000 net on earned income, removal of the tax exemption from future issues of securities, and curtailment of the advantages of joint income returns still allowed married couples in some states.

Later representatives of 2,500 officials of the American Federation of Labor from 12 southern states, who stepped to double production of war materials during 1943, as a result of their meeting in Atlanta. A 13-point program appears of utmost significance. It includes elimination of the no-strike policy, less delay in settling labor disputes, interpretation of international rulings and orders and decisions to officers of state federations; full representation on the board of directors that effect labor; appeal to press and public against adverse labor legislation; opposition to compulsory war as a condition to voting; equal rights for all in labor relations of race or color; establishment of minimum wage scale.

Sound Effects Simulate Fury Of Modern War

TIS 'Noise Makers' Play Vital Role In Troop Training

Simulated battle conditions, through use of sound effects, is the latest wrinkle in teaching the art of warfare, developed at the Infantry School at Fort Benning to save thousands of dollars in live ammunition annually and to release thousands of troops, airplanes and cannon for other duty.

In fact, so costly would be the use of actual troops, planes and other equipment to produce the same effects in training of officer candidates and troops as well, that their use would be practically impossible.

Thus the sound section of the Infantry School is contributing at very little cost a training that it would scarcely be possible to attain outside of actually facing an enemy. And that in turn means that new American officers are receiving training which will be invaluable to them and their men as well when they actually lead troops into combat.

The sound section is serving in other capacities also, including that of developing many new techniques in loud speaker systems, some of which will have commercial value in radio after the war, training of communication men in taking messages under near-battle conditions, and training of technicians.

The section also is set up in order to carry warning all over the See SOUND, Page 7

Col. Stubbs To Be Moved

Col. Jackson Named 2nd STR Commander

Colonel Maurice G. Stubbs, commanding officer of the Second Student Training Regiment of the Infantry School, has been transferred to a new assignment, it was announced today, and will leave his present post on Saturday.

Colonel Edward B. Jackson, executive officer of the regiment, will succeed Col. Stubbs as commanding officer in the organization. Major Lester E. Winslow, formerly commanding officer of the Second Student Training Regiment, will assume the regimental post of executive officer.

Although Colonel Stubbs' new assignment has not been announced publicly, it was disclosed that he will attend the division officers' course at the Infantry School, commencing February 1, 1943.

During World War I, Col. Stubbs served with the 12th Division. He was later assigned to the 2nd Student Training Regiment upon its activation on November 13, 1941. Since that time, Col. Stubbs has nurtured the growth of the vast training unit for officer candidates.

Tiny Hand Grenade Comes Into Its Own; G. I.'s Back From War Call for More

Yanks Thoroughly Trained In Use Of Potent Weapon

BY LT. REUBEN A. HOLDEN

Wherever men are fighting today they are making use of one of the most powerful of all the weapons of warfare, the mighty little grenade. Every report from the battlefield bears this out, and it is singularly true that the men who return from the fighting zones always express the hope that the next time they can get their hands on more grenades.

In close contact the rifle is the weapon normally employed. But the rifle is powerless against opponents who have the shelter of a deep trench or foxhole or the protection of an intervening hill. As a result a weapon has had to be evolved that would have as much destructive force as possible, combined with such a variable trajectory that mere depth would be rendered no real protection.

DEVELOPMENT GRENADE

The guns of the Field Artillery at longer range and the mortars at shorter ranges have been designed for this purpose. The further necessity of providing the individual soldier with a weapon of similar characteristics caused development of the grenade, and today grenades have come to be universally regarded as indispensable both in attack and defense.

In World War I, the French claimed that the grenade was the See TINY, Page 8

Exchange Soda Fountain Will Open Next Tuesday; Cafe Nears Completion

Expanded Facilities Will Ease Shortage Of Dining Space

Malted milks and cokes will be dispensed from the new soda fountain on Ingersoll street and Wold avenue about next Tuesday, it was indicated today by Major H. E. McGaffey, exchange officer.

The soda fountain is the first section of the new building to be opened. Maj. McGaffey said, as work on the restaurant and cafeteria is still going on. It is expected that the restaurant and cafeteria will be open for business about February 1.

Started last October, construction of the new, modern exchange building has been progressing rapidly during the winter months. The exchange building is to be located by the establishment will solve many eating problems at the post.

On the second floor of the new building, which is 188 feet long by 200 feet wide, the business offices of the Exchange will be located. Presently situated in the towers at Doughboy stadium, the offices will be moved starting next Thursday.

The soda fountain, which is presently located in Doughboy stadium, closed last night for inventory. The activity will not reopen until early next week when the new soda fountain will be open for business in the new cafe. In its new location, the soda fountain will be larger and more pleasant than the present one, Maj. McGaffey indicated.

When the restaurant and the PX Planning 'Counter' Attack

There are lots of folks at Fort Benning counting on the opening of the new cafeteria in the exchange building on Ingersoll street and Wold avenue about next Tuesday, it was indicated today by Major H. E. McGaffey, exchange officer.

Exchange officials are doing their best to find a counter. If YOU might know where a suitable one can be found, Major McGaffey would like to know where to find it.

'Hit The Deck' is published elsewhere in today's Bayonet.

Ex-Two-Niner Gets D. S. M.

Lt. H. G. Peabody Cited For Bravery

Two separate decorations for extraordinary heroism under fire in New Guinea have been awarded to Lt. Herbert G. Peabody, formerly assigned to the 29th Infantry here, according to word reaching Fort Benning. The awards including the Distinguished Service Cross and an Oak Leaf in lieu of the D. S. M., were made by General Douglas MacArthur.

Lt. Peabody won his first D. S. M. for bravery in action last November 16; his second for heroism under fire on December 15, near Buna, New Guinea.

The citation accompanying the decorations said that the five-man patrol broke through enemy lines and established itself on the beach near that place.

"The only supply route lay through an enemy position," the citation stated. "Peabody led a carrying unit forward to replenish the patrol's ammunition, and had to crawl through enemy mortar fire and sniper activity to make the delivery."

The decorations are reported to be the first of the D. S. C. type to be bestowed during the Buna fighting.

Newspapermen To Visit Post

South Americans Arrive Here Monday

Ten newspapermen from Peru and Uruguay will arrive Monday for a one-day tour of Fort Benning under the auspices of the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs.

Arriving early Monday morning the party will go directly to the Officers' club for breakfast, after which the guests will be taken to the Parachute school. From there they will go to the Tenth Armored Division for a tour and lunch. Part of the afternoon will be spent in the Infantry School.

Following dinner the Latin-Americans will go to Opelika to catch a train.

Included in the group will be Esteban Pavletich, head of the bureau of propaganda for the Peruvian government. Two of the men from Uruguay are former under secretaries of the interior and one is now a member of the Chamber of Deputies.

Accompanying the men will be Arthur Wild, director of tours for the National Press Club. The journalists are in this country at the invitation of the National Press Club.

Those from Uruguay are all from Montevideo while Arequipa and Lima are represented by the Peruvians.

From Uruguay come Dr. Thomas Brena, editor of El Bien Publico; Jose Pereyra, Gonzales, news editor of El Dia; Dr. Eduardo Rodriguez, co-director of El Pais; Julio Caporale Scelta, co-director of Mundo Uruguayo; Ricardo Hernandez, managing editor of El Tiempo; Carlos Manini Rios, director of La Manana; and Nelson Garcia Serrato, staff writer of La Razon.

In 1918 he participated in the Peruvian campaign against the German plan to establish a German plant in the Hinderburg Line. From See THREE, Page 3

Tax Delayed For Soldiers

'Victory' Levy Postponed Until 1944; Time to File Income Tax Draws Nigh

Thousands of enlisted men and officers at Fort Benning alike will shortly whittle their pencils and while away their spare hours preparing their 1942 income tax returns to the Federal Government.

Despite the laborious hours which are habitually attendant to figuring out the taxes, there are at least two bright prospects on the horizon for soldiers:

1. All soldiers whose ability to pay the income tax has become "materially impaired by reason of military service," may apply for a moratorium on paying their taxes, which become due within six months after termination of military service.

2. The 1943 Victory Tax, which has been instituted to reap in additional millions for the Federal Treasury, will be withdrawn during the year from monthly payrolls.

Four officers from Fort Benning attended a meeting at Atlanta early this week where representatives of the Collector of Internal Revenue explained the ramifications of the 1942 income tax as it applies to soldiers. The officers from the post, in turn held a meeting yesterday afternoon at the Infantry School to discuss the various units on the post where the problems of income tax liabilities were explained. These unit officers will be able to answer questions from troops on the post relative to the payment of the taxes.

NO INDIVIDUAL DATA

Lt. Col. J. H. McFall, Finance Officer on the post, announced today that finance officers this year will not supply individual soldiers with reports on their earnings during 1942, as had been the custom in years past. Due to the war work involved, the War Department has ruled against the practice this year.

In lieu of the individual reports to soldiers, the finance officer will supply a table of average annual incomes of enlisted men and officers, upon which they will be able to determine their annual income to which to fill out the tax return.

Although income tax returns are not due to be filed until March, it was pointed out that soldiers should start determining their earnings and preparing their forms now instead of being caught short later when they may become liable to a fine as penalty for the delay.

SUBJECT TO TAX

Information prepared at Post Headquarters indicates those subject to file a tax return:

1. Every individual who is single and whose income is married but not living with husband or wife, must file an Income Tax return if, during the calendar year 1942, his or her gross income was $500 or more.

2. Every individual who is married and living with husband or wife, must file an income tax return if, during the calendar year 1942, his or her gross income was $1,200 or more.

3. Every individual who qualifies as head of a family, although not a married person, who has a gross income of $500 or over must file a return to the regular extent.

Enlisted Men Study On Their Own Time

The Infantry School's Academic Regiment, which serves the school with a staff of 1,000 men of all types, instituted a Regimental Training Course this week to prepare enlisted men for Officer Candidate schools.

Designed to cover a four-week schedule, the course is being conducted on the men's own time, with classes slated for evenings and Sunday mornings.

Colonel Harry N. Burkhalter, commanding officer of the Regiment, heads the staff of regimental instructors. The preparatory course, which will cover 40 hours of work, includes lectures and practical work in orientation, close order drill, physical training, military courtesy, and organization of the Infantry.

MAKE APPLICATION

Application for the Regimental Training Course is made through the company commanders of the unit, it was announced. The course has been established as a necessary prerequisite for enlisted men in the Academic Regiment seeking recommendation on their application for O. C. S. The course is being conducted with the idea of preparing troops for any Officer Candidate School.

Troops of the regiment who live off the reservation and whose course is being established in the barracks for the four week period, during which time they will be given opportunity to demonstrate qualities of leadership by being placed in charge of squads and details.

CPL HARRY RODRIGUEZ

Three Nations Decorated Lawson Field Non-Com

Cpl. Rodriguez Won Six Medals Before Age of 18

Six decorations for gallantry under fire awarded by three different governments is the World War record of Cpl. Harry Rodriguez of Lawson Field. And to crown these achievements is the fact that he won them all before reaching the age of 18.

Cpl. Rodriguez joined the Army to fight in the first World War at the age of 16. He fought overseas for 11 months with Company D, 107th Regiment, 27th Division, attached to the second British Army Corps.

Cpl. Rodriguez participated in the Belgian offensive during which he brought back behind the lines seven men who had been gassed. He also shot down a German plane with a machine gun. For these exploits he was decorated by Field Marshal Douglas Haig, with the British Military Medal.

Later Cpl. Rodriguez was wounded in action in the cracking of the Hinderburg Line. From See THREE, Page 3

One Son Assigned To 10th Armored

One by Mrs. Mary Williams, who lives near Pittsburgh, Pa., watched five sons and one daughter go into service and today she is on a several thousand-mile jaunt to visit four of them. The journey brought her this week to Fort Benning to visit Pvt. Samuel Williams, now a member of the Tenth Armored Division. Staff Sgt. Lester Williams, who now is overseas, was first to leave. He joined the Army in February, 1939, and the Navy last June. Then Charles, who is a private first class serving at Miami Beach, was inducted in April of 1942. He was followed by Frank, baby of the family, just 18, who joined the Navy last June and now is attending a mechanics school at Jacksonville, Fla. David, who also joined the Navy in August, and is attending a school at Newport, R. I.

DAUGHTER A NURSE

Then, her youngest daughter, Mrs. who is a graduate nurse, entered the service and now is a second lieutenant at Camp Lee, Va. Samuel, who is 35, tried to volunteer but was rejected. When his draft number came up, however, he was accepted, much to his delight.

LAFF OF THE WEEK

The instructor in defense against gas attack stood in the doorway of the gas chamber. "Now, men, we'll see how many of you are experts and how many become casualties. MOVE IN!" Members of the 25th Company, Third Student Training Regiment, rushed into the chamber and when they emerged from another door they all smiled except one. Candidate who had tears streaming down his face. The instructor laughed jeeringly and said, "Casualty, eh?" "No, that's not it," the candidate replied, "I've been so well at home lately. My girl's going with a ship yard worker who's 4-B."

Carolina Senator Resigns To Battle Axis Enemies

Candidate Gordon Gray of the 20th Company, 3rd STR, stopped making plans to lay down the law to the Axis. Candidate Gray resigned senatorial duties after serving two terms as North Carolina State Senator to join Uncle Sam's Army and was inducted at Fort Benning, 1942. He took his basic training at Camp Wheeler.

PHI BETA KAPPA

Candidate Gray began his education at Woodberry Forest, Virginia, in 1937. He was editor of the Yale Law Journal and was president of Corbett Court Law Fraternity. Upon completion of his education, Candidate Gray spent two years practicing law in New York with the firm of Carter, Ledyard and Milburn followed by two more years with the firm of Manly, Hendren and Womble of Winston-Salem, N. C.

NEWSPAPER MAN In 1937 he became president of the Piedmont Publishing Company, serving as publisher of the Winston-Salem Journal and The Twin City Sentinel and was also director of radio stations WSJS and WGLM; from that time until his induction Candidate Gray devoted his activities to his Senatorial duties plus serving on the State Banking Commission.

Named Assistant Club Officer

Recently appointed assistant club officer is 1st Lt. Albert J. McAllister, formerly assigned to the secretary's office, the Infantry School. McAllister first came to Benning in February, 1942, to attend Infantry Candidate School. Previously, he had been stationed at Camp Roberts, Md. Boasting several years experience in hotel business, Lt. McAllister is also a graduate of Cornell University's hotel administration course. Upon completion of his studies, he worked for the

Filipino Reporter Takes Course

Illustrate Wrote For Capital Paper

With Japanese occupying his Philippine home, Ernesto Domondador, Illustrer, former Special Correspondent for the Washington Post, has a definite reason for being here in the Third Student Training Regiment of the Infantry School. He's now getting a thorough course in the weapons and tactics of Infantry warfare which, if he successfully passes, will gain for him the commission of second lieutenant in the Army of the United States. With that training he hopes to go back to his homeland and help to drive out the invaders.

The day after the attack on Pearl Harbor Domondador tried to enlist in the United States. The Philippines could not volunteer, he along with others, circulated a petition in Philippine communities throughout the United States to have Congress change the law. They got results and Domondador entered the army in April, 1942. After his basic training he was assigned to the Infantry Officer School and arrived here November 21, 1942.

Lured by stories of skyrockets and democracy told to him by American Oil Engineers living in his home, Domondador, at the age of 17 came to America. That was in 1925. He studied journalism at Stanford and Northwestern Universities. From 1934 to 1937 he was assistant to the Director of Social Welfare in the Philippine community center in Chicago and in 1937 he returned to his homeland to get his journalism degree from the Island University. After a three-year newspaper career there he returned to the United States to become public relations director of the Philippine Commission in Washington.

Besides his official press releases to American papers, he wrote articles independently, the most important series of which was that for the Washington Post in 1941.

O. C. Choir to Sing In Atlanta Cathedral

Group Of 30 Formed In 2nd STR

A choir composed entirely of officer candidates from the Second Student Training Regiment of the Infantry school which has made quite a reputation in Benning musical circle will appear Sunday, Jan. 24, at the main service at the Cathedral of St. Philip in Atlanta.

Arrangements for the choir's appearance were made by Dean Raimundo de Oles of the Cathedral and Chaplain Edwin L. Willson of the Second Regiment. The group of 30 will sing at the Cathedral of St. Philip in Atlanta. This choir from the Second Regiment, commanded by Col. Maurice G. Stubbs, is a very interesting musical organization. Its members were almost without exception members of well-known choral groups in civilian life. It is directed by Capt. John S. Greenfield, commander of an officer candidate training company in the Second Regiment, with whom choral singing is a long-standing hobby.

ONE YEAR OLD

The choir was started in February of 1942 when officer candidates started coming to the Infantry school in increased numbers. The idea had the full support of Col. Stubbs despite the difficulties which could be expected in a regiment where the personnel is permanent for a maximum of three months. He felt that the choir would help to demonstrate to the general public that the American army seeks to do more for its soldiers than just make of them fighters with a lust for killing. For the choir not only gives its members an outlet for cultural inclinations, but through its music each Sunday the cathedral chapel down by the guardhouse also provides other candidates in the regiment with entertainment and cultural lines and takes them back each Sunday to an atmosphere akin to their former civilian lives.

NEVER ABSENT

And despite the fact that members are never with the choir more than three months, which is the length of the course at the school, this choir has never given a Sunday since last February. Members of the choir are also able to carry on with their choral work and is the hope of Capt. Greenfield that when they see what can be done along these lines at Benning that they will carry the idea along with them when they are assigned to other army outfits as officers and that they will organize similar singing groups elsewhere.

For the gospel of the teaching at the school is to show these men what they can do when they are assigned to other units as officers.

EXPERIENCED ORGANIST

Organist for the choir, who will play in Atlanta is 1st Lt. Alfred H. Haight of Syracuse, N. Y., who has a broad musical background. Other officers who will accompany the choir in Atlanta include Capt. Gilbert A. Williams and Capt. Francis Strapp, both company commanders in the regiment, and 1st Lt. Paul A. Balentine, all of whom have sung with the choir since its inception. Chaplain Willson will also be in the party.

Because of the fact that candidates work six days a week, 12 hours a day during their intensive course, the choir is not able to meet at Fort Benning until 8:30 Saturday night. The fact that

Lawson Bomb-Sight

By CPL. E. N. FUSILLO

Master Sergeants Luther Daniel and Albert M. Chaffin, both of Headquarters, have been appointed warrant officers. Mr. Daniel was chief clerk and Mr. Chaffin was in charge of personnel.

Mr. Daniel enlisted in July 26, 1934 and served his entire Army career at Fort Benning. For two years he was with the 49th Infantry, and since 1936 has been at Lawson Field. Described by officers as "a walking encyclopedia of rules and regulations," he is from the point of service, the oldest man at the field.

He holds the highest average ever made in the Air Corps Technical School at Lowry Field, Denver, Colo., which he attended for twenty weeks.

Mr. Chaffin enlisted in 1935 and was stationed with Flight C of the 46th Observation Squadron at Fort Bragg, N. C. in 1938 at the expiration of his enlistment he returned to civilian life and was employed by Eastern Air Lines at LaGuardia Field, N. Y. In 1941 Mr. Chaffin was called back to service and stationed at Lawson Field. For two years he has been sergeant major of Headquarters personnel.

He attended the Fourth Corps Aerial Personnel School and received the highest grade of his class. His first assignment was with the 6th F. A. Battalion at Fort Hoyle, Md., and a year later, while serving with the 21st F. A. Battalion, he received his silver bars. In 1940, while serving as a battery commander in the 3rd F. A. Bn. of the 2nd Cavalry Division at Fort Riley, Kansas, he was promoted to a captain.

In June, 1941, he received his majority. At that time he was with the 2nd Cavalry's 73rd F. A. Bn. where he held several posts including battalion intelligence officer and plans and training officer.

On July 1st he was transferred to the 10th Armored Division to command the 423rd.

This Yarn Recalls Triple-threat Who Caught Own Pass

A lieutenant of the Mortar Committee is still a bit dazed by the actions of a squad from the 22nd Company of the Third Student Training Regiment.

At the moment the squad was using the field expedient of ladder bracketing. The corporal had given the range and fire order which sent three mortar shells into the air (at one time) he hoped. The usual period of waiting for the shells to reach their destination arrived.

The corporal, eagle-eyed at the terrain. The shells hit, the final shell was in the target area. The corporal turned to give a fire order—the mortar was deserted. The crew including Candidates J. S. Anderson, John Garber and Edmund Shoop had left the mortar and scurried to the top of the hill to observe the strike of their shells.

The dazed lieutenant of the Mortar Committee had only one comment to offer. "The squad had demonstrated leadership."

First World War Veterans Eligible For Life Insurance

Veterans of the first World War are advised of eligibility for United States Government life insurance, as well as National Service life insurance.

The latest ruling was made known in an announcement issued by the Adjutant General's office, Washington, D. C. There are certain requirements as to physical fitness, besides limiting the amount of money any individual may buy to $10,000.

United States Government insurance offers certain advantages over the National Service type, including permanent and total disability clauses, no restrictions on beneficiaries, lump sum benefits in case of death or total disability, and lower premium rates.

The rank of a WAAC officer who wears two silver bars is "First Officer," corresponding to the rank of captain in the regular Army.

Tiger Officer Is Lieut. Colonel At Age 25

One of the youngest officers in the army to hold his present rank is 25-year-old Lieut. Colonel William W. Beverly of the 10th Armored Division. Colonel Beverly is commander of the division's 423rd Field Artillery.

Starting his meteoric rise scarcely more than four years ago, he received his commission in the Field Artillery at the United States Military Academy in 1938. His first assignment was with the 6th F. A. Battalion at Fort Hoyle, Md., and a year later, while serving with the 21st F. A. Battalion, he received his silver bars.

In June, 1941, he received his majority. At that time he was with the 2nd Cavalry's 73rd F. A. Bn. where he held several posts including battalion intelligence officer and plans and training officer.

Regulations Forbid Overnight Visits Sans Authority

Alvin Dolph Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phare Cook, 3013 4th Ave., Columbus, who was missing from home since January 13, has been found on the post and returned to his parents.

According to Alvin's parents, the 11-year-old boy thought it as something of a lark, provost marshal issued the warning that unauthorized civilians spending the night on the post, or over staying their pass, may be picked up by the military police.

Military personnel are urged neither to help nor encourage, any unauthorized persons seeking to remain inside the reservation. This is strictly against regulations.

Woman's Club

By LAURA M. BAILEY

The regular meeting of the Woman's club, which will be held in the Main Lounge of the Officers' club Feb. 1, will be of special interest to the members. The Spanish Group of the Woman's club is responsible for the program.

The importance of the Latin American countries have never been as clear as today when war conditions have shut off our imports from those countries. Coffee rationing is a prime example of the most acute reminders of these countries' part in our daily living.

For these reasons a Latin American program is a timely feature. The Spanish Group is planning a diversified program that will give the audience a glimpse into these countries, through a presentation of music, dancing and a colorful display of art from the various countries.

Pvt. Harold Reginald H. Kelley will speak briefly on the economic and historical background of these countries. Col. Kelley has endeavored himself to the members of the Woman's club by his willingness to give to the members his knowledge of world-wide conditions. His lecture on the subject have been one of the popular group activities.

The members of the Spanish group will act as hostesses for the tea hour. They will be dressed in the bright native costumes of the various countries they have lived in during their years in the army. Mrs. Henry F. Ferrine is in charge of the program and is completing the plans for a colorful and unusual meeting.

MUSIC CLUB

Pvt. Harold Scheckman, talented young violinist who conducts the Columbus Symphony Orchestra and has appeared on Fort Benning radio program, will be featured in the music group of the Woman's club Wednesday afternoon. The program, featuring music by Haydn and Beethoven, will be given at 2 p. m. in the ladies lounge of the Officers' Club.

The program, arranged by Mrs. Edward Glaze, follows:

1. Piano solo—Miss Charlotte Hagmon—"Sonata in D" by Haydn.

2. Vocal solo—Mrs. John Grant—"My Mother's Bird" by Bind My Hair by Haydn; "The Violet" by Mozart. Mrs. John Spitzer, accompanist.

3. Violin solo—Mrs. Edwin Wallace—"Fantasia in G" by Mozart.

4. Piano solo—Pvt. Harold Scheckman—"Concerto in G" by Mozart. Lt. H. M. Cordeiro, accompanist.

Poor O. D. Walks All Night; Made Papa Next Day

Captain Peter J. Newton of Gibson, N. C., who commands the Sixth Company in the Third Student Training Regiment was Officer of the Day here recently.

Ordinarily the Officer of the Day doesn't walk a post but merely supervises the guards. However on this particular day the guards were surprised to see Captain Newton doing more walking than any of them.

The reason for his activity was the fact that his wife, the former Esther Rogers of Andrews, S. C., was expecting a baby. At Station House Newton was waiting for the baby to be born.

It was the second baby girl for the Newtons born here on the Post.

Regulations Forbid Overnight Visits Sans Authority

Alvin Dolph Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phare Cook, 3013 4th Ave., Columbus, who was missing from home since January 13, has been found on the post and returned to his parents.

According to Alvin's parents, the 11-year-old boy thought it as something of a lark, provost marshal issued the warning that unauthorized civilians spending the night on the post, or over staying their pass, may be picked up by the military police.

Military personnel are urged neither to help nor encourage, any unauthorized persons seeking to remain inside the reservation. This is strictly against regulations.

Gunner Doesn't Believe In Wasting Ammunition

The 81-mm. mortar coughed sharply, and the instructor, watching the target, told his class of Infantry Officer Candidates: "Now don't expect that to hit anything. It should take three or four rounds to adjust—"

Red Georgia clay and black smoke mushroomed up 900 yards away. When the time and rumble faded, there wasn't any target.

Candidate James W. Devine

the gunner, hadn't been thinking of targets. He was thinking of the target. The Nazis, he had just heard, had captured his kid brother.

And his classmates in the 14th Co., Third Student Training Regiment, call Devine that—the second of three soldiering sons of Farmer A. J. Devine of Villeda, La. A sergeant squad leader at 22, he was sent back in October from northern Ireland for officer training. As a young officer, he was on a famous converted liner, Sgt. William S. Devine, 19, rear gunner, was flying east and to war with his brother.

Somehow between the spray and mists of the gray Atlantic their paths crossed. DIDN'T KNOW. But Andy didn't know that until he got home on his 10-day furlough. His older brother, John, 35, was gone too; he was now a staff sergeant in an infantry unit at Camp Adair, Ore. There was another trip and silence. Then Sgt. Peter Beaton, who won the Golden Gloves bantam-weight title in 1940 and was crowned champion boxer in the same weight class, is stationed at Key Field. Beaton has engaged in 100 fights, winning 93—most of 'em by knockouts. He's now boxing in the regular monthly matches held at Key Field.

Andy doesn't say much about it. February 17, when they are scheduled to pin a Second Lieutenant's gold bars on his shoulders, he probably won't be saying any more. But he is a first-class gunner with the machine gun, both light and heavy, and a sharpshooter with the Garand; so it is likely the Nazis haven't had the last word with the Devine brothers of Villeda, La.

Shops In Columbus

By Eve

With rationing of essential items of daily living, facing us in a few weeks are some indulging in worries as to how it will affect our meals. Once the national organization is perfected we'll manage as nicely as we have with the sugar and gasoline rationing. There has been no intimation that we will be deprived of the great American privilege of keeping our homes and ourselves looking our prettiest. Not for a while anyway. So, in the meantime, we'll shop and look over the lovely spring arrivals in the Columbus shops and assure ourselves we're still the luckiest women in the world.

No matter how grand you thought your winter wardrobe was a few weeks ago you're certain to think it's definitely out of fashion. There are a host of bright spring fashions at the PATRIOT GOWN SHOP on the third floor of the Raleigh Hotel. The new fashions are appropriate in their simplicity and wearability for innumerable occasions. Take that number in black sheer with a soft, lovely tulle in the skirt. The simple bodice is distinctive with a collar and cuffs of pleated white pique edged in cut out embroidery. There's anything more feminine than black with fresh and frothy white I don't know what it is. Then there's a navy blue and just a touch of white, navy sheer with white polka dots. It's a suit with a crisp white dickey, and flaments navy blue. There are many more spring suits in melting plaid color combinations such as grey with lemon and blue with brown. Ah, me, what temptations to a clothes-loving woman!

Have you taken advantage of the White Sale now in its last week? KIRVENS? If your household linen supplies are running low you'd better make a point of looking over the values they have to offer, for you know White Sales are held in January and there may be some bargains before you'll have an opportunity like this again. There's plenty of sheets, the nice long ones, 81x108 that have been perfectly made. Mattress protectors too, that all good housewives feel are essential. Thick Turkish towels of all sizes. Cotton damask napkins for everyday use and cheap enough not to break your heart if lost. There's also a lot of laundry fresh and white for everyday use too. Stains can be removed so much easier than in the colored ones. If your bed pillows have become limp and lifeless, you might replace them with this sale and assure yourself and family of that most precious of all necessities, luxurious sleep.

For years and years, no matter where they've been stationed, army wives have worn Arnold Authentic shoes. They have acquired a reputation for smartness in a sport shoes, perfection in leather and finish that means the best work of the hardest sort. We have been able to order them through MILLER-TAYLOR SHOE STORE in the city. The only constant demand for all time, but cherished by members of your family.

I've known all along that the photographer at AIME DUPONT'S on Broadway was no ordinary photographer. I've seen too much of his fine work. My appreciation of his ability was confirmed when I found out he is a contemporary and co-worker of the famous Steichen, F. O. Matthysen and Harpers Bazaars are familiar with Steichen's photography. This then is a tip to you women who would like to have a "once-in-a-lifetime" portrait of yourself. Choose your loveliest dress, have your hair shining and clean and go down some afternoon any time after one o'clock in the afternoon. He'll be free then from the many many demands from the magazine in the thing he likes best—photographing you in poses and lighting effects to produce a portrait that will be not only your favorite for all time, but cherished by members of your family.

Lt. Schwartz Lays
Trap And Pots
Japs Without Loss

The Infantry School's slogan for its Officer Candidate course is "We turn out combat leaders." And the Second Student Training Regiment, which graduates its major part of the school's second lieutenants, in recent months has received ample evidence from far-flung battlefronts that the slogan is holding true.

The latest case in point is Lt. Paul L. Schwartz of Syracuse, N. Y. His exploits in the fighting in New Guinea in recent months have been spread over much of the nation's press, and he has just been awarded the D. S. C. by General Douglas MacArthur.

TIME magazine carries a detailed account of a recent action in which he participated. Lt. Schwartz and his patrol of 13 men were working through jungle-matted New Guinea in the vicinity of Buna, seeking to strike through to the coast.

They were approaching the village of Tarakana when a Jap machine gun opened fire on them. Lt. Schwartz decided to hold the machine gunners off while the Japs were about. He assigned two men to take care of the machine gun, stationed two others as snipers on the village's sea flank. Then he and the other nine men charged the village firing.

The Japanese apparently thought they were outnumbered and retreated from their dug-in positions. The snipers' line of fire where they fell like ten-pins. The machine gun was knocked out by the pair assigned to it. Lt. Schwartz and his patrol cleaned out the village and held it for some time until the Japs reorganized and started a counter-attack. Save Water Bain Urges

Move Will Conserve
Power And Chemicals

"Save water and soak a Jap," says Col. Albert J. Bain, Post Engineer.

"When you save water, you save electricity, essential chemicals, and prolong the life of almost irreplaceable equipment," the colonel added, while speaking about conservation of facilities on the reservation.

An encouraging note was struck, however, when it was disclosed that 6,000,000 gallons of water is being used per day at present. The colonel's goal is to reduce this to 5,000,000 gallons for the same period. This, too, is with an increase in post population. Generally, Fort Benning's consumption of water is not excessive, according to Colonel Bain, but much could be accomplished toward further conservation.

"FOR WANT of a nail a kingdom was lost!"—Sgt. Cochran G. Windham, Regimental Mechanic of the Academic Regiment, I. S. S. C., is one soldier who really takes the Scrap Conservation Drive to heart. Here he is shown salvaging bent spikes and nails that might otherwise have been discarded as useless.

Sgt. Windham is a rare phenomena at Ft. Benning—born and raised in Phenix City, Ala. He went to Phenix City High School and enlisted June 11, 1935. Has been at Benning ever since. Sgt. Windham is married to a Phenix City girl, the former Miss Marie Stuebs. He celebrates his third anniversary in July.

The above picture is run with the hope that soldiers and civilians alike will follow the example—Infantry School photo.

God Loves Ordinary Folk He Creates So Many

The men of the Fourth Company, Third Student Training Regiment, form a distinguished organization in that their ranks include no former track stars, no All-American athletes, though through no congressmen.

Their civilian backgrounds run the usual gamut from railroad maintenance men to embalmers. As usual, all the recruits have potential talent judge advocate to be exact. Some of them were eminent town politicians, proud, self-devised, and ambitious.

Three—men whose trades can be used successfully in military service are a forester, known as "Dezigue Dave," an auto mechanic, and a man who will probably see yeaman service as a P & P Officer, and a former embalmer, "buff" said.

The glamour department includes an old radio City Music Hill man (no, he wasn't an usher), two radio actors, a country singer, a stage singer, and one music lover-praise the board and pass him his commission.

Conservation Power
Power is needed to pump water to these areas and the more used, the greater the sewerage load to be removed.

While electrical power is there source stressed in the conservation program, three vital chemicals and one metal are also included. These are alum, lime, and chlorine, especially the latter, which is a critical war material.

Mrs. George Brauner has been missed in the graft class recently. We hope she will soon be able to be out again.

We are sorry to report that M. Sgt. and Mrs. John Scoville have left the village to live in the post. They will be missed by their many friends here.

Miss Marie Cody has left the village for Macon, Georgia, where she entered a Defense Training school.

Sgt. and Mrs. R. D. Follen, 85 H., had a recent visitor from her home, 38 Fox, Saturday afternoon, 17-28.

The craft class which meets each Wednesday and Thursday welcomes anyone who enjoys making things with his hands.

GIRL SCOUTS
Mrs. John Pinkham, Scout leader, entertained the members of her Scout troop at a party at her home, 38 Fox, Saturday afternoon. The girls enjoyed a basketball game before the party.

Enlisted Men Over 30 Are Eligible

Army Seeks
PX Officers

Names and present assignments of enlisted men over 30 years of age who are qualified as assistant exchange officers are being registered by headquarters at Fort Benning.

In a letter sent to Benning from Fourth Service Command headquarters it was stated "It is now possible for the Army Exchange Service to recommend for appointment as officers, for training at the Exchange School and later assignment as assistant exchange officers, qualified enlisted men 30 years of age and older, who have completed their basic training."

Salute Pays Off In Greenbacks, Corporal Learns

Corp. George J. Griffin,
24th General Hospital, Fort
Benning, Ga., believes it pays to salute.

It seems Griffin was strolling through the area, when he saw a lieutenant approaching. He snapped to attention, saluted smartly, and passed on.

"Wait a minute, corporal," the officer called. "I have just received my silver bars and you are the first man to salute me. Here is a dollar bill."

"The Axis powers knew that they must win the war in 1942—or eventually lose everything. I do not need to tell you that our enemies did NOT win this war in 1942." —Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Benning Goes 'All-Out' In Conservation Program

A "tent city" was erected near a rifle range to house an entire battalion during over-night stays to save time, gas, and rubber; the post engineer is directing a campaign to cut power consumption on the post to absolute essential need; an item in the Daily Bulletin urged all personnel on the reservation to cut out all wastage of water, thus effecting a saving in the water itself, the power it takes to pump it through pipes into post installations, and in the chemicals used by purify it.

Motorcycles with side-cars were assigned to post headquarters for use of personnel on official business thereby reducing wear and tear on staff cars and conserving precious gas, oil, and rubber.

Announcement was made that housewives purchasing commodities from PX groceries will be affected by the rationing point system designed to conserve food supplies for ourselves, our soldiers, and our Allies.

The assistant provost marshal asserted that Benning is setting the pace for the nation in the pooling rides, thereby saving fuel and rubber and reducing in a measure the tremendous burden placed on public transportation facilities to Columbus.

A Benning sergeant straightens bent nails and screws for further use. A small detail, perhaps, but it helps to meet the shortage of these essential items.

Butter appears on mess-hall tables in reduced quantities and oleomargarine takes its place that our fighters across the seas may have body-building food and sets for munitions of war.

Fort Benning soldiers and civilians allotted from pay or paid cash for over a million dollars worth of war bonds in 1942. This helps in the program against inflation, establishes voluntary savings accounts, and helps buy the guns, tanks, planes, and other materials of war for the United Nations.

The post's Army wives and Girl Scouts began the preparation of a book of war-time recipes designed to conserve food and to present a palatable and eye-pleasing dish made of left-overs to their hungry families.

The post inspector announced that Benning is driving ahead in its campaign to salvage metals, fats, and greases, reclaiming and repairing all machinery which is still serviceable and sending to the melting pots of the nation the rest.

This is the story of the conservation program which is in progress at Fort Benning these days, a story which has been prominent on the front pages of the Bayonet for the past several weeks and which ruled the front page of last week's issue.

It appears that the inhabitants of Benning are doing themselves proud in making sacrifices here and there to further the cause of American and Allied Arms. Of course, this is only a beginning and as the war progresses, we shall be called upon to make greater and greater sacrifices. Fort Benning authorities are taking this conservation program in grim seriousness as shown by this splendid beginning and have set up a model which may well be followed by any community in the nation.

Our Women Wear Insignia And Flaunt Regulations

Committing acts specifically forbidden by an Act of Congress is, in no limited sense of the word, a crime. Yet, one may walk along Broadway in Columbus any day or night of the week and observe many persons—many of them probably our wives or sweethearts or mothers—who are openly flaunting the law.

Specifically we are referring to the wearing of military insignia by persons not authorized to do so.

To illustrate our point:

1. In a soda fountain we observed a young lady, who probably would become ten years old on his next birthday, displaying the Defense Campaign Bar service ribbon, which is authorized to be worn in lieu of the actual medal by some troops. This youngster probably didn't know he should not have worn it. But his father, who was with him, certainly should have known. (He did anyway, after we told him about the law.)

2. A young lady, smartly clad in a camel's hair coat, displayed the blue, white and red arm insignia of General Headquarters as she entered a popular restaurant in Columbus.

3. Another young lady, who probably had a beau in the infantry, proudly displayed a set of crossed rifles on her blouse as she went about her work in a local newspaper office.

4. Outfitted in a natty pair of "pinks" and a dark green wool shirt, frequently worn by many commissioned officers, a young lad of about five was observed on the Post sporting a regulation set of captain's bars, specifically authorized to be worn only by an officer in that grade in the Army of the United States.

The Daily Bulletin, issued at Post Headquarters, recently called attention of all concerned to the provisions of the Army Regulations, based upon Statutory Law, which forbid the wearing of insignia by those not authorized. However, the practice continues. It will only be through the whole-hearted cooperation of those of us with wives, sweethearts, or girl friends—AND young children—to take account of ourselves and obey the law.

War Department Circular 130, dated May

1, 1942, Section 3, brings our changes to Army Regulations 600-90, relative to the "Sale and wear of insignia, decorations, medals, and badges." To quote from the AR's, we cite the following:

"The wearing of any decoration, medal, badge, or insignia prescribed or authorized by the War Department, by any person for whom such decoration, medal, badge, or insignia is not prescribed or prescribed, or their use to misrepresent the identification or status of the person by whom worn, is prohibited."

And that's not all: Every person who flaunts that regulation, as based upon an Act of Congress, may find himself in the following embarrassing situation if the issue were brought to a show-down:

"Any person who offends against this provision is subject to punishment by a fine not exceeding $250, or by imprisonment not exceeding 6 months, or both."

Every soldier is proud of the uniform he wears. Every soldier and every officer is proud of the insignia he wears on his uniform. When the modes of fashion need be warped so as to decorate children and women with our distinctive regulation insignia, why then we sincerely believe Congress should first be asked to change the public laws in the interests of vanity.

Dehydration One Answer To Submarine Menace

With the submarine menace, and with the importance of conserving shipping space, dehydrated foods are playing an important role in keeping our troops fed properly in our various distant war fronts. If we can ship enough foodstuffs which will last indefinitely without spoilage, and if we can conserve enough shipping space, then we will use fewer ships in the transportation of these foods, and use other unoccupied space to carry ammunition or other important war supplies. Our Quartermaster is doing an excellent job in the shipping of condensed food, and spaces conserved to a maximum degree.

The ability to preserve foods by dehydration has been known to man since the beginning of history. Archaeologists have found in Egypt fruits that were preserved by the Pharaohs, and our Pilgrim forefathers brought the gift to this country. We of course must realize the tremendous improvements on this age old process.

The literal meaning of "dehydration" means extraction of water. It is used in connection with foods to indicate the artificial drying of the product by the application of heat in a mechanical device where heat and humidity are accurately controlled. Removal of the moisture which forms a large part of most food items results in a shrinkage tremendously important from a transportation standpoint. One important point that must be clearly illustrated, is that "dehydration" affords a year-round use of the product. The essential savings in tin are enormous, not alone for the food that many of the dehydrated foods are now being packed in specially treated paper cartons, treated with various chemicals and wax coatings which are virtually moisture-proof and will not deteriorate under temperature extremes.

Vast amounts of shipping and storage space can be saved by the widespread use of concentrated foods. The overseas shipment of 27 million pounds of potatoes, for example, now can be reduced to 3 million pounds, which will save about 10,000 ships' tons, or the approximate capacity of two cargo ships. Chief among the foods sent overseas are powdered soups, eggs, and milk; vegetables used mostly for overseas shipment are potatoes, onions, carrots, cabbage, beets and turnips.

The preliminary preparations in dehydrating foods are of immense importance. First the product must be "pre-processed," this includes the selection, grinding, washing and blanching (scalding). To show how important the blanching process is: unblanched potatoes attain an undesirable, starchy and irregularly darkened appearance when dried. One most perplexing problem is the proper state of maturity to dehydrate a vegetable. The proper selection of vegetables for concentration is necessary. Immature vegetables are weak in color and flavor, and overmature vegetables are usually too tough and woody.

The Department of Agriculture is making great strides in the research and development of dehydrated food stuff. New products and new processes are being tested and worthwhile additions are being made continually. Most of the dehydrating facilities are along the Pacific Coast; this is mainly due to the fact that most of the canneries and processing plants are located there. The canners have the facilities required for a large scale dehydration of food; in this way the requirements of our armed forces can be met with the least possible delay.

USO Presents—

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR BENNING BOYS TO STUDY FENCING AND PHOTOGRAPHY

BY CPL SOLOMON S. KLEINDORF

A new class for the soldiers of Fort Benning was opened last night in the USO club on 9th St. The subject is fencing and the instructor is Cpl. Bert Bristol. Bristol has been active in fencing for many years and has been a recipient of the Eastern Intercollegiate Fencing Conference medal. Soldiers and civilians are invited to attend the classes which are held back-stage from 7:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. every Wednesday night at the above mentioned club.

Another good class to attend is the new Photography class being conducted by Pvt. Gerrit Oudkerk of the 161st Signal Photo Company at Fort Benning. Those attending every Thursday from 8:30 p. m. to 10:30 p. m. will really learn something. Pvt. Oudkerk is a former Eastman employee in the Netherlands and was official staff photographer of the rescue police of that country. He formerly served as a Zone Photographer of the Police Department of the City of Rochester, and previous to this, was the chief society photographer of the National Photo News in New York City.

Whatever happens, don't forget to be at the 9th St. USO this coming Monday to hear the lecture by Louis Fischer, noted novelist and newspaperman.

Speaking of personalities brings to mind that two potential radio stars were discovered in the Salvation Army-USO in Columbus. The names are: Chuck Jones, First Parachute Training Regiment, and Dolph Price of the First Student Training Regiment.

POLITE PREVARICATIONS

Of course I didn't have to re-enlist—I was getting eight bucks a day when I re-enlisted.

I can drink that stuff all night—never wake up with a head.

Private Feathersby upon arriving at his new post in the tropics decided to express his love to the girl friend back home by sending her a nice juicy pineapple. But due to the holiday rush the package got misplaced in the mails. When it finally arrived it was in a very deformed state. The girl friend opened it and got one whiff.

The next day Private Feathersby received the following telegram: "Thanks for the skunk. It was sweet of you to send it."

RIGHT AND WRONG

Chaplain Frank M. Thompson

"And a highway shall be there, and a way . . . for those; the way-faring men, though fools, shall not err therein."

These words have furnished the text for many a sermon on conduct—no one need be hesitant, nor alarmed, even the weak-minded may know what to do under any circumstances. All of which contradicts the experience of mankind.

No, the problem of right and wrong is not solved in such a soft easy going fashion. There is no illuminated, thoroughfare over which one's feet may move unerringly. The world of morals is a labyrinth, a maze of ways abounding in darkness as well as light. And often the wisest, the most conscientious are at their wit's end as to the policy to pursue, especially in international affairs.

Here is a peace-loving country invaded by a stronger, it's people killed, cities pillaged. What is the duty of the nations that believe in justice. By all the decent laws of man and the edicts of God, the oppressed should be given aid. How? Any interference may mean a greater tragedy.

So in our dealings one with another, the proper course of action is often equally as perplexing. The saintliest might well ponder these lines:

"It ain't so far from right to wrong; the trail ain't hard to lose."

There's times I'd give my horse to know which one that I should choose.

There ain't no signs or guide boards up to keep you on the track.

Wrong's sometimes white as driven snow and right looks awful black.

I don't set up to be no judge of right and wrong in men. I've lost the trail sometimes myself.

I may get lost again."

"If I had but one prayer to make," said John Galsworthy, in one of his plays, "it would be: 'Good God, give me to understand.'"

CAFE CHATTER

Capt.—"They don't seem to be very fresh, either."

Waiter—"Then it's lucky they're small, isn't it, Sir?"

Eve Says

YESTERDAY'S PROBLEMS WERE TRIVIAL AS WILL SEEM TODAY'S BEFORE LONG

We've experienced so many changes this past year I don't think we realize that our woman to woman conversations have changed with our living conditions. That's as it should be, for women chatter about the things that affect them directly. Not more than a year ago we used to hear scraps of conversation at the meat counter of the Post Exchange that went something like this:

"I don't know what I'm going to do about that maid of mine. A pound of butter is gone in two days. I think she eats it by the chunk."

"I know, I have the same trouble with mine, but it's Crisco and bacon My food bills would be cut in half if I could do without the shiftless thing."

"I found my maid making a cake out of Crisco and I made her throw it out. I can't stand any substitute for butter."

"I spend more money for silk stockings, but I can't bear any thing on my legs but two thread chiffons. They're a wicked extravagance, but who on earth would be caught dead in service weight?"

"Jack provokes me. He'll never eat a dessert unless I have it covered with whipped cream. You can imagine what my milk bill is—"

"You'd better not count on me for Wednesday afternoon. I've always saved Wednesday and Saturday afternoons to be with Carl. He likes me to be free to do things in his time off—"

"This endless Sunday driving makes the week-end a misery for me. I can't see any earthly sense flying over the highway. I loathe automobile trips unless there's something special to see or do."

"Yes, we're expecting orders. I can't wait to get out of here, I'm so bored with the place. After all, five years makes one old settler, and what's the use of being in the Army unless one can move about occasionally?"

"It doesn't seem like we'll ever get the seventeen-year pay period. All I can think of, is how rich we'll be. I've so many things planned—"

"We're caught up with our calls, every last one of them—"

"I don't know why he's going to Leavenworth—"

"Harry's put the 9th Corps area on his preference card for years, but you know how much good that does—"

Trivial conversation of a happier age. Important then, those problems. Talk of today may sound equally trivial at a later date.

Dedicated to all G. I. Believers I'm just a lovely private in the untempled Infantry; (I'm next in line for "yardbird, if we have a vacancy). To all the men about me I'm just a worthless lout, The corporals call me "Goofy" and the sergeants bawl me out.

I'm getting tired and weary; my morale is running low; My self-respect is wavering; my pride went long ago. I see my pals promoted, but no one remembers me, Except on guard and fatigue details or a nice week-end K. P.

Sgt. McDonald's Basket

By S-SGT. TOM McDONALD

During the last several days I have been acting in the capacity of "orderly" to Colonel Swampwater and believe me we have really covered some territory. O. T. P. has had me following him from one end of this Post to the other, while he makes his survey of "differential attitudes among privates" for an article which he intends to write for one of the military magazines.

During the time we were commuting between the various units the colonel drove the jeep and I had to walk ahead with a broom handle and "probe" the road for possible Anti-Tank mines. O. T. P. said it would be excellent practice for me. Since he intended to take me along with him if he required to one of the various fronts.

The first three days of the colonel's survey I walked 36 miles "probe stick" and it all became so interesting on the third day that I began to hope I would find an Anti-Tank mine, just for the hell of it.

The only trouble we had though was when I "probed" what I thought was a mine fuse, but it turned out to be a cigarette butt, for which an M. P. was reaching. If the colonel hadn't stepped in and explained the thing right quick, I would have been charged with probing without a "license" or something equally drastic.

When we visited one of the Quartermaster companies the Colonel and I heard a very interesting account of the Government Insurance situation. One of their privates was reporting to his company commander and the following conversation occurred:

Private—Sir, ah wants to take out $10,000 worth of insurance.

C. O.—But you just took a $1,000 policy a week ago.

Private—Yah Sah, but ah done changed mah mind.

C. O.—Why did you change your mind?

Private—Well Suh, I done heard we all might be "going across" a right quick like and I sort of figured Uncle Sam's Army would take better care of a $10,000 boy than dey would a $1,000 one.

Colonel Swampwater seemed highly pleased with the private's deductions so he complimented the C. O. on his company and then he went and got in the jeep and I "probed" for him until we reached the 117th Infantry. Seeing one of their privates walking solemnly back and forth on guard duty the colonel decided to question him for his survey. I dropped

Sometimes I feel determined to resist undue abuse, But my minute courage falters and I mutter "What's the use?"

If I should sink a battleship, I'd get no world acclaim, But if the world stopped turning, you can bet I'd get the blame.

When this damned war is over and the world again is free, I'll still be just a private in the untempled Infantry. I may not have a medal or "a bright spot in the sun," But I'll have the satisfaction of a good, hard job well done.

my "probe" stick and followed him over. When we got within the required distance the private yelled "Halt, who goes there?" Colonel Swampwater answered "Friend."

Advance and be recognized" snapped the private. It was all over in a minute, but we advanced and the Colonel was "presented arms" then the guard "port arms" and then of T. P. got set to ask him the questions.

First he asked him all of the guard orders, Army regulations 610-675, how many pages did the Soldier's Handbook contain and who was President of the United States during Lincoln's Administration?

The private of the guard mechanically quoted the General Orders but he was a bit dizzy on the rest of the questions. So he asked of T. P. for the answers and he was promptly reprimanded for questioning a superior officer disrespectfully. Then feeling it was time to end the interview of T. P. asked him to name the kind of guard mounts.

After arching his eyebrows in a perplexed manner, the private said "Well, Sir, there're three kinds, I believe. Formal, informal, and the kind we get around here."

For a few seconds I thought Col. Swampwater was going to have a fit but after eyeing the private for a fraction of eternity he returned to the jeep and belatedly, "orderly!" He yelled this every time he got ready to move on. So I knew that there wasn't a damn thing for me to do but pick up the broom handle and start "probing" again.

'Hit the Deck' Drops Anchor On Post for Five-Day Stand

Hilarious Comedy Opens January 26 in Main Theater

The play will invade Fort Benning when the USO-Camp Shows presentation of Vincent Youmans' famous musical comedy, "Hit the Deck," steams into our harbor for five days shore-leave on Jan. 26.

"Hit the Deck" will play the Main Theater Jan. 26 and 27. The comedy will then move to Sand Hill for a one-night stand Jan. 28 in Theater No. 7. The last two days will be spent in the Harmony Church area at Theaters Nos. 11 and 4.

Firing broadsides of hilarity and mirth, this super-dreadnaught production of laughs and liveness will offer many a Vincent Youmans' greatest hit tunes, such as "Hallelujah" and "Sometimes I'm Happy," the popularity of which has endured through the years.

Trying to find the right Smith out of all the Smiths in the Navy is like trying to find a needle in a haystack. That's what Vincent Youmans' greatest hit tunes, such as "Hallelujah" and "Sometimes I'm Happy," the popularity of which has endured through the years.

The hero and heroine wind in and out of the usual circumstances common to protagonists in musical comedy books, but in this one, the comedy is a finale to an evening of rare comedy, lulling tunes, and captivating dances.

A SCENE FROM 'HIT THE DECK'

With The Civilians

MERTLE JOINES

Modernized by Frank Gabrielson from the original book by Herbert Fields, USO-Camp Shows has mounted the production lavishly and assembled a stellar cast to perform the Youmans' masterpiece.

The current comic role of New York, Willie Shore, who just created a new long-run record at the Paramount Theater there, will indulge in his hilarious antics and display his startling impersonation talent. Lee Dixon comes from the Ziegfeld "Follies" and Hollywood stardom to play "Bilge" Smith. Marilyn Ross will play the part of Looloo, the heroine.

Maria Austin assumes the role of Looloo, the heroine's comic sister, and Earle McVeigh as Lt. Clark will handle the vocal assignments. Others in the cast are Christine Forsythe, ace tap dancer, who received her initiation to USO-Camp Shows here at Fort Benning last year; the crack acrobatic team of Jean Jack and Jerry; Alan LeRoy, a J. J. Vanasse; the Ben Vot's Midshipmen, and 12 singing, dancing gorgeous Yeomenettes.

The Fiscal Section at The Infantry School just won't be the same without Marie Lemon. Marie has that "smile you love to see" and such a lovely manner that things will be different without her—but she will be back. You can count on that.

You should see Doris Robins today. That girl is all dressed up in the newest pair of wings and what a smile! I understand there was a mild stampede in the Infantry School when she came in all dressed up in her wings.

Mildred Feinberg and Rosanne O'Kelley have been running around headquarters today getting information on making requisitions to the quartermaster. They are badly in need of a gas mask. Seems there is a cigar smoker rides with them and his cigars are something else again.

That Man's here again and THAT MAN is none other than Uncle Sam. This time he has tapped Dowdhen Baugh and Billy Shores of the Area Engineer's office. They should certainly feel at home in khaki they have been working around it long enough. They will be missed though from their old haunts.

Mildred Goldberg formerly of Headquarters now secretary to Colonel Stephen B. Massey, had to come home early from her leave to New York things were in such a state up there. A brother-in-law married and she became an aunt all in the same. Too much for Mildred!

Sorry Tunstall Bryars of the Area Engineer's Office, assistant administrative officer—to be exact—is sick. Better hurry up and get well.

Wedding bells continue to ring on the post. This time we are happy to announce the wedding of Maxine Powell to George Dotson, and Louise Barrett to 2nd Lt. Gene Brooks. Just regret that this last couple will live at Camp Wolters, Texas, though. Our best to them both. Dan Cupid stays busy down in that Automotive Section.

And speaking of wedding may

'Gator Personnel Happy, Reason—226 Promotions

The holiday season brought more than parcels and a deluge of cards and letters to the 12th Infantry "Gators." Along with the change to the New Year came many changes in the old Florida regiment, which brought about a mass leaving bee.

As a result of recommendations and examinations (or non coms) there were 226 promotions among the enlisted personnel between Dec. 14, 1942, and Jan. 14, 1943. Most of the ratings came out in time to be enjoyed with the Christmas turkey and the rest were helpful in making the New Year bright.

Sgt. Wiley Scott, the "Gator's" well known Band Director, was made master sergeant along with the promotion of six to First Sergeant, 19 to staff sergeant, 46 to line sergeant, 22 to sergeant technician, 28 to corporal and 45 to corporal technician.

Every company in the regiment was represented on the lists that made the "Gator" holiday season an extra merry one.

LONGEVITY PAY is an increase of 5 per cent of base pay, given to a soldier for each three years of active service in the Armed Forces.

Lawson Field Area to Get New Theater

Paratroopers and Lawson field personnel shortly will enjoy the facilities of a new theater, to be located at the intersection of Indian Head and Bradshaw Roads.

With a capacity of about 600 seats, which is double the capacity of the present Theater No. 3 in the 117th Infantry Regiment's area, the new theater is expected to be completed within 30 days. When the new theater opens, it will replace No. 3 and the total number of theaters at the post will remain at eleven.

Capt. John Sutton, post theater officer, states that the new location of Theater No. 3 will be a boon to the paratroopers who presently would have to walk some distance to the movies.

Gotham Exhibit Includes Painting By 'Gator Artist

Pfc. Ernest B. Bergwall, of the 124th Infantry Medical Detachment, is going all the way to New York to see a show.

But the show is not of the usual variety, for it is being held in the American-British Art Center in Gotham. On Feb. 7 the doors of the center will open for the public's first viewing of the One Hundred selected paintings chosen from the thousands that were submitted to the Life Magazine Service Men's Art Contest. Bergwall's painting, "Tents at McClellan," is one of that select group.

Bergwall, who hails from Laurel, studied art at the Art Students League and at the National Academy of Art in New York. He has also exhibited at the Vendome Galleries in that city.

Like many a progressive artist he feels that his latest efforts are only stepping stones toward works that will be really satisfactory in the future and it was difficult to get him to admit that the painting to be shown in New York is meritorious.

However, when Bergwall gets within the doors of the American-British Art Center he will probably be excited in the fact that his painting and he are members of the One Hundred.

Reception Center Band Replaces Alarm Clocks

There may be a shortage of alarm clocks these days but there's no shortage of wind power and drums to awaken officers of the Reception Center at Fort Benning. To conserve on alarm clocks and preclude any need for purchasing new ones, Lt. Col. Urie N. James has decided to plan to use the Reception Center Band, which has to play for revile anyway, to arouse the officers.

Each day, promptly at 6:30 a. m., the band, with trumpets blaring, saxophones singing, brass horns blasting away and drums booming, marches through the officers' quarters.

Col. James now thinks that his idea is really better than a battery of alarm clocks. Besides saving wear and tear on the clocks it gives the band practice—and the band makes a lot more noise than the clocks, too.

Captain Mulligan Promoted To Major

Promotion of Captain Robert E. Mulligan of Albany, N. Y., to the rank of major in the Army of the United States was announced here at headquarters of the Second Student Training Regiment of the Infantry School.

Major Mulligan was called to active duty as a Reserve Officer Nov. 7, 1940, and served a year at Fort Jay, N. Y., before coming to the Infantry School in January of 1942 to attend a three-month course for company officers. Upon graduation in April of 1942 he was assigned to the Second Regiment as commander of an officer candidate training company, and for the last few months has been serving as executive officer of the Fifth Battalion.

Ken Bartholomew, former Minneapolis national ice skating champion, will be in the Army. He's stationed at Camp Crowder, Mo., and is a corporal.

EXOTIC LEE BARTELL, SINGING STAR

'Crazy Show' to Appear in Alabama January 28

The title "Crazy Show" is the tip-off on the revenue which USO-Camps presents on Jan. 28 at Theatre No. 10 in the Alabama area.

Anything can happen in a show which was designed with all the emphasis on zaniness—and in this one anything and everything goes. The comedians sing, the singers make merry with the jokes, the dancers ad-lib, and the gag men dance.

A man makes music on a bicycle pump. A pair of stunts is one of the props. Performers walk on and off the stage at will, heaving and ribbing each other, tying themselves and the audience in knots. The complete good nature of the fast-paced slapstick brand of humor which runs through the whole revue bounces right over the footlights and is strictly in the convulsive groove.

"Emceeing" all these crazy going-on and adding his own particular brand of "gonzoism" to the general hilarious disorder is Ben McAttee, who is definitely of the Milton Berle school of comedians. His delivery is smooth and glib and he keeps the show moving right down the old alley in an effortless style that gets over big.

The rest of the cast is big-time. Arken and Roberts, the boy and girl jitterbug dance team, are really zoot-suit; Vivian France, the attractive acro-lapster, stops the show with her flash routines; and Lee Bartell, a real belle of the blues, is an exotic-looking young thrush who sells her songs.

Dead-Eye Dick Moves Over For TIS Marksman

A San Franciscan is top man with the rifle in the 22nd Company, Third Student Training Regiment. He is red-headed Maxwell James, son of Col. and Mrs. Maxwell James. James scored a 321 out of a possible 340 points, thus qualifying as a rifle expert.

James comes by his military excellence naturally, since his father has been active with the Regular Army for a number of years and is now on active service in Africa.

Before coming to Fort Benning, James graduated from Lowell High school in San Francisco and attended the University of California.

Lt. Gorman Moved To Camp Gordon

First Lieutenant Howard A. Gorman, assistant chief of civilian personnel branch, has been transferred to Camp Gordon, Ga., where he is assigned to the 329th Quartermaster Battalion.

Entering the army as a private, in August, 1941, Lt. Gorman was high school in Paine Field, Wash., and later at Harding Field, La., where he rose to the rank of sergeant. In March, 1942, he attended Officer Candidate School, Camp Lee, Va., receiving his commission in May.

At this time Lt. Gorman was assigned to Benning, where he remained, except for a six weeks period at the University of Pennsylvania, studying industrial relations.

Like a veteran, and particularly her very strong arrangements of "St. Louis Blues" and "Joseph, Joseph."

A PEEK AT THE PICS

REVEALS ANOTHER 'SUSPENSE' STORY AS A BEAUTY WAITS TO BE STRANGLER

Alfred Hitchcock scores again. . . This time with "Shadow of a Doubt," starring Teresa Wright and Joseph Cotten. . . When it comes to the story of John Robert Powers, but no, it is only a love story between George Murphy and Alan Shirley, with a little of Carole Landis thrown in for good measure. . . The only thing about Powers in the entire pic is a small scene in which Alan Shirley portrays him. . . Some of the training the Powers models undergo is shown, but actually it is the story of Carole's ambition to be a model and how she gets there through the help of Ann and George.

It is a good show and shouldn't be missed, but don't expect to see too much.

There is only one thing wrong with the mystery stories written by Jason Cady (Milton Berle), he can never get past the murder—in fact he can never figure out who the murderer is—in his own stories. . . Stuck as usual, he takes his latest unfinished "whodunit" to the office of his wife (Mary Beth Hughes), whose boss, Brenner (Reginald Denny), doesn't know she's married. . . From there on the story is a series of ridiculous but then again is anything about Milton Berle.

LOOKING INTO THE FUTURE. . . Don't get excited boys, but your favorite pin-up girl will be dressed in a pair of silk slits in her new picture "Coney Island". . . Can you imagine Betty Grable in a pair of slits, my, my!

And here is the little inside dope on Macdonald Carey's rejection from the Marine Corps. . . The answer is, he was color-blind. But he has tried again and was accepted. He took some treatments and was cured in three months.

SPORTSCASTING

BY SGT. CARL NEU

It's about time that someone stepped to the fore with a good word for the beleaguered men who officiate sports events at Benning. For some time now, we've been watching and hearing umpires and referees take a much worse "beating" than they deserve. Of course, the old game of umpire-baiting goes hand-in-hand with American sports and in peacetime civilian days, it's probably a healthy sign. But it seems to this corner that an overdose of it in Army sports is a little off the beam.

The men who officiate Benning games are, for the most part, officers and non-coms who are willing to come out and work for a very moderate fee because they are interested in the sport. They give up their own leisure time and as far as we know have always been more than obliging to help out in any emergency. The officiating during the recent grid campaign was no what you might find in big-time college circles, but neither was the brand of football that was played. On the whole, the grid refs did a good job. They kept the games under control, and clean football was the result. But they took an awful lambasting from the stands and the teams.

Now that the court campaign has gotten under way, the same hue and cry has begun again. All that one well-known, and in my opinion excellent, referee had to do the other night was walk on the court when his loud-voiced grandstand adversary started beefing. It didn't seem very fair to this scribe to start crucifying a man for a foul he might have called a year ago on the roster's favorite team. Yet, that's what some of the fans seem to delight in doing.

Frankly, the situation is this. The athletic association obtains the best available officials at the post, and the men are carefully selected for their past experience and reputation as officials. For the most part, Army men are used, since it is believed they have more of an interest in developing post sports than outside civilians. Also, officials for games are scarce this year. Therefore, it is either a case of getting along with the available men, or discontinuing the present abundant sports program. So c'mon fellows, let's quit the beefing and remember that if you can't boost, don't knock!

Heard from Lieut. William C. (Wild Bill) Fannin, Camp Rucker's athletic director the other day. Bill used to be the big guy of Benning boxing circles and this year is carrying on at a new, cauliflower-ear stand. He relates that he already has two crack pugilistic teams at Rucker, one of them composed entirely of colored siliers. And naturally he is anxious to match the Rucker wreckers with a couple of Benning ring teams. Plans are already under way, and if transportation difficulties can be overcome, a couple of good matches may result.

One real bright ray in the word that a match between colored boxers from Benning and Rucker may be arranged is the fact that Fannin has a crackjack heavyweight whom he could match against Eddie Jackson, the ring maestro of the 3rd STR. Jackson, you know, is the ex-pro slugger, who used to spar around with Abe Simon and some other of champ Joe Louis' opponents. Jackson is a great performer, but has only appeared once in a post ring because no suitable opponent could be found for him. So Benning fans may be in for a rare treat if Sergeant Eddie, who's a real big-timer, climbs into the squared circle against a Rucker rival.

Speaking of Fannin reminds us that word came to the post over the week-end of the promotion of Lieut. Louis M. Van Houten to the rank of captain over at Fort Screven near Savannah. Captain Van Houten preceded Lt. Col. Charles C. Finnegan as athletic officer here, and held the post for over a year. He is now a quartermaster officer, in charge of the transportation section. Prior to his Army service, the ex-Benning sports head was athletic director and head coach at Marist College in Atlanta. He is still taking a hand at athletics as coach of the Screven court edition this winter which has won nine and lost four to date.

It won't be so very long now until the ump is dusting off the old plat again and yelling "Play ball" at good old Gowdy Field. Indications are that it will be one of the biggest of all baseball years at Benning. At this writing it seems extremely doubtful that there will be a post team as in days of yore. Gas rationing, and other transportation difficulties will probably prevent most college and pro teams from visiting the post. The rah-rah fans undoubtedly will forego the spring trips that used to bring teams like Michigan State and Illinois College to the post, while the pro clubs are all expected to stay at home and train. Columbus may not even have a team, so the only competition would be from nearby schools like Auburn, Oglethorpe and some of the others, and they may not be able to travel either. If there is no post team, that means the intra-mural league will start earlier and play a longer schedule. A full-fledged softball loop is also under consideration so don't worry there will be plenty of diamond sport at the old camp during this summer.

A southern service teams' basketball tourney will be held in the municipal auditorium at Macon around the end of February under the auspices of the Army-USO athletic council of that city, and there is a good possibility that several Benning quintets may be represented. The competition will probably be plenty rugged, since some of the best basketball clubs in the country are right here in southeastern Army camps this winter. However, we'll wager that there are at least four Benning teams that could do better than hold their own in the championship tourney, and it is fondly hoped that at least a couple of these units can see their way clear to send teams to the Macon affair.

BAYONET TIPS—The consistently good sports photos which appear on these pages were usually the products of three G. I. in the new post signal photo lab who have put a lot of time and effort into helping ye sports editor. They are Ed Bourne, Don Kortemeier, and Mel Stock and along with their boss, Capt. Herbert Gooley, who snapped some of the grand pictures, they have been giving readers a complete pictorial coverage of post sports ever since the Bayonet began. Take a bow, boys! . . . Saturday night's nighttime at the post gym between the Two-Nine and Academic Profs will bring together for the first time this year the two clubs that fought it out in last winter's title play-off with the Devils taking the honors. . . . The brand new 30th Infantry may field one of the best baseball teams at the fort this spring. They have a plentitude of ex-pro talent. . . . Tip-of-the-week to Tony Byrsky, court star of the 53rd Hospital Infantry, the main post loop. He's the finest ball-handler to court on a post court in many years, and also an outstanding netrecker.

Conference Rivals Clash On Saturday

Devils Oppose Profs, Gators, Breakers Vie In Crucial Twin Bill

Capacity Crowd Expected To Watch Battles at Post Gym

HIGH-FLYING CHUTISTS of the 507th Parachute Infantry, now the post's only unbeaten court squad with a record of eight straight wins, hail from all over the country and boast a wide variety of previous experience. Here they are lined up in their Alabama gym, with the exception of Harmon (Tex) Walters, the high-scoring ace from Rice institute who is on the injured list. Reading from left to right you can see Windsor, former Central High star from Phenix City; Fessler, ex-Pennsylvania schoolboy star; Cofey, former Columbus High player; Wagoner, of Michigan State; Lieut. Lillie, captain and coach from Lawrence and Western college in the Oshkosh All-Stars; Todd, from Adrian College in Ohio; Scott, former University of Oregon ace; Ardziejewski, from Ripon College in Michigan; Smith, Badger star from Wisconsin, and Stout, who formerly played for Cumberland College in Kentucky. They will defend their win streak against the New York Celtics in a game this Saturday night in their own gym.

Third Armored Unit Whips 54th's Pugs

Champs To Be Crowned March 26

The Tenth Armored Tigers' boxing tournament got under way Monday night with the Third Armored Regiment's Third Battalion winning three of the five bouts against the Second Battalion of the 54th Armored Infantry.

The bouts were the first preliminaries of inter-battalion competition which will conclude March 26 with the crowning of the individual champions in each weight. The final championship will be determined by the number of points amassed by the individual fighters as they progress through the final rounds. There will be no team fighting after the preliminaries.

Two middleweights, Pvt. John Kubina of the 54th and Pvt. Pete Lowendowski of the 3rd, gave the best exhibition Monday as Kubina won the decision on the strength of a nine count knockdown just before the bell ending the final third round.

BETTER FIGHTER—In losing Lowendowski showed himself a better fighter than did any of the men who won in other weights. But the two-listed body slugging by the weaving Kubina kept the fight at virtually a draw until the closing seconds of the last round.

Then Kubina slipped across a night which was just strong enough to slip Lowendowski to his knees. He started to bounce back off the canvas, then settled back on his knee to wait.

Crack Quintets Vie Tonight at Arena In Opening Games of Service League

Eight Colored Five Members of Circuit Sponsored by FBAA

For the first time in Benning sports circles, an all-colored basketball league will begin operation tonight with four teams competing for the spacious twin courts at the Harmony Church sports arena. Eight crack quintets, representing service units from various sections of the post, have banded together in the Service League, which is being sponsored by the Fort Benning Athletic Association.

Opening night twin bills will pit the Medical Detachment against the Commandos of the 2nd Student Training in the opening at 7:30, while the other early tilt will bring together the 1st STR entry and a strong quintet representing the Special Training Detachment.

PACESETTERS FACE R. C.

In the nighttime attractions, scheduled for an 8:45 tap-off, the Service Detachment of the Academic Regiment, known as the Pacesetters, will oppose the Reception Center's high-scoring machine, while the fourth tilt features the famous Panthers of the 3rd STR, coached by Lieut. Jack Gushin, against the crack Post Detachment quintet, paced by its 6 foot 6 inch center, Tom Hall.

The loop was originally scheduled to play four games every Thursday at Harmony Church, and two tilts on Mondays at the old 24th Infantry Recreation Hall on the post proper. However, last Sunday's bad storm crossed right over the recreation hall, and damaged it considerably. Pending the announcement of future plans for the building, next Monday's schedule has been postponed to a later date, and for the time being the Service League will play only on Thursdays at the sports arena.

FORMER PRO ACE

Highlight box on tonight's program will probably be the clash between the Panthers and the Post Detachment. Included in the line-up of the 3rd STR five is Henry (Hank) Blackburn, one of the fort's best hoopers. He has been played for Xavier College as well as the famous Reconnaissance and Globoetterer pro quintets. Along with Frankie Phillips.

Celtics-507th Play Saturday

One of America's foremost court teams, the famous New York Celtics, will visit Fort Benning on Saturday night when they face the undefeated 507th Parachute quintet in the Alameda chutist gym in the Alabama arena. It was announced late last night. The tap-off will be at 7:30 o'clock.

The Celtics boast some of the most colorful performers on the hardwood, including Davey Banks, playing his twentieth year on the same team. Nat Hickey, Rusty Sanders, and Bob Synott are other greats who will oppose the 507th squad which boasts wins over Auburn, the defending post champs of the 29th Infantry, and several city clubs.

DELBAINE WINS—In the heavyweight division stocky Pvt. Lloyd Delbane of the 54th outpunched bigger, slower Pvt. J. H. Sanders of the 3rd to win the decision. Sanders tried to stand Delbane off with his longer arms instead of blocking his face with his gloves, and Delbane, though taking some blows in the face, managed to break through for more punches to Sanders' face.

Welterweight Pvt. Lyle Bildeau of the 54th, a Minnesota Indian who had never been in the ring before, did an expert job of blocking the blows of Winner Pvt. Michael Contrava, but he was never able to get any offensive started.

The inexperienced Bildeau might have acquitted himself better had he been fighting an orthodox boxer. But Contrava was a knacker. He started to bounce back off the canvas, then settled back on his knee to wait.

Three of the eight bouts scheduled were defeated, two by the 54th and one by the 3rd. Even so, the fighters had plenty of backing from their buddies, who filled the 11th Armored Regiment's recreation hall to capacity.

Those who advanced to the quarter-finals by default were Cpl. R. A. Wheeler, 3rd, flyweight; Pvt. T. Eiston, 54th, bantamweight; and Pvt. T. A. Anderson, 3rd, featherweight.

WASHING VICTORY

Bouncing back after their opening defeat by 2 points, the Devils boys from the 54th Infantry ripped open the 11th Regiment to the tune of 39 to 25 to open the third round of league play. Borowski and Balleit led the scoring for the 54th with 15 and 13 points respectively. Seay chalked up 10 points for the losers.

Again it was the 420th who crippled the 419th in a walkaway by the margin of 33 to 16 to hand the 419th their first loss of the season. Leading at the half by the score of 21 to 9, the 420th continued to pile up their lead to give them final victory.

Hoopsers In Sand Hill And Cusseta Leagues Start Second Round

As the second round of games got under way in the 10th Armored's Sand Hill and Cusseta Basketball Leagues there were some changes made with some of the favorites coming thru and some upsets balancing the budget.

The Mighty 55th Engineers came out on the long end of a 48 to 26 score, defeating the 42nd F. A. Bn. in the opening game of the Sand Hill League for their first victory in league play. Patterson of the Engineers flipped in 19 points, while Christ of the F. A. team scored 17 to lead his team in individual scoring.

Third Armored Regiment's Dragons trumped the Maintenance Battalion into submission in the second game by the lop sided score of 56 to 16. The Dragons seemed to score at will and definitely established themselves as the team to watch, along with the 420th F. A. team, which is also undefeated in league play.

The "Brasshats" of Division Headquarters Company defeated Division Trains in the lone game of the Cusseta League when they hit the hoop from all corners of the court to win, 43 to 18. At half time, Headquarters led 23 to 4 and the reserves took over and added more points to the bewildered boys from Trains. Yanda led the scoring for the winners with 14 points.

BOUNCING VICTORY—Bouncing back after their opening defeat by 2 points, the Devils boys from the 54th Infantry ripped open the 11th Regiment to the tune of 39 to 25 to open the third round of league play. Borowski and Balleit led the scoring for the 54th with 15 and 13 points respectively. Seay chalked up 10 points for the losers.

Medical Soldiers Travel No 'Easy' Road To Glory And Quick Ratings

Their Reward Consists of Smiles In Exchange For Relief of Pain

"Join the medical department and get yourself a quick and easy rating as a pin-pusher!"

Personnel of the Detachment, Medical Department, Station Hospital, are growing a bit weary of hearing this statement babbled forth from the mouths of small minority of narrow minded people who probably utter these words because they are uninformed.

It's getting a 'quick and easy' rating consists of caring for the sick and ailing, the helpless and maimed, the halt and the blind for twenty-four hours a day; if a 'quick' rating comes from laborious study of the complexities of X-ray, laboratory, dental work, physiotherapy, surgery, orthopedics, pharmacology, and ward management, okay then, maybe one may consider it a 'quick and easy' road, but just suppose you talk come down and try our work out for a while, the medicals retort.

LARGEST IN U. S.

The work of the medical detachment here at Benning, Georgia, is the largest of its kind in the entire nation, is perhaps best epitomized in the words of Major John B. Joyner, the detachment's commanding officer, in a statement to his command:

"You work while others sleep. The sick and injured are always with us. Your greatest reward is not medals, but it is a sign of satisfaction when your ministrations have made pain less severe or brought a smile of contentment to the result of kind and encouraging words."

The Detachment, now preparing to celebrate its 25th anniversary, the largest detachment supplying any hospital in the country, is comprised of hundreds of men doing every type of work imaginable to keep the Station Hospital running with clock-like precision. Many of these men are here solely for training purposes, some come in "green" from the factories and others are experienced. Here they learn their work by practical application, and upon leaving many are qualified as first class technicians skilled in all aspects of hospital management.

The Army realizes that men doing work of this type must have recreation; without it they would be unable to keep up their own morale, much less the morale of the ailing and wounded patients. A medical soldier must be patient and must have the proper spirit or else he is defeated even before he begins.

For this reason the Detachment has a complete recreational program in which all the men may participate. It has three complete day-rooms which offer everything to the soldier. It also boasts of two excellent tennis courts, an outdoor basketball court, a touch-football field and a boxing arena. There is a library of hundreds of the latest "best-sellers" shelves upon shelves of the latest magazine.

MAJOR J. B. JOYNER

grenade supplanted the rifle as the chief weapon in trench warfare. At critical moments in close fighting a soldier will often prefer a hand grenade which he can throw toward an enemy to a rifle which he must aim at his opponent. The effect of a grenade is greater and more widespread than a rifle shot and has considerably greater effect on morale.

The little "pineapple" is not a new instrument of war. The word "grenade" comes from the Latin word meaning "filled with grains" and is closely related to the Spanish word "granada" or "pomegranate," thus indicating the resemblance between the fruit and the grenade first used by the Spanish.

The flares and fire pots thrown by early cave dwellers were the first types of grenades. The Chinese "stink pot," a vial of some foul-smelling liquid, was devised as early as 500 B. C. Ancient wars in the Far East were also known to have made use of a small box or earthenware jar of live vipers which could be broken into the enemy camp. Grenades of an unknown substance were used in 250 B. C. by the Romans to combat the elephant charges of the Pyrrhus, King of Epirus, and again for the same purpose in the second Punic War.

USED BY GREEKS

Chemical grenades were used by the Greeks as early as 360 B. C. These were made of incense, sulphur, pitch, and faggots — a virtual incendiary bomb. The phoenicians and another type was instigated by the armies of the Caliph of Baghdad. This was a jar of flaming pitch, projected by a catapult. The crusades developed a grenade on the same order iron naphtha.

However, the first really effective employment of the weapon came in 1536 during the siege of Ales when the first gunpowder grenade was introduced and followed by a French military engineer, Vauban. By the end of the 17th century the soldiers of France had produced a grenade in which whereby grenades could be fired from their muskets.

In the reign of Louis XIV the first grenades company was formed. Chosen for the best men in the regiment, selected for their courage, service, and ability. The grenades were high bearing caps to distinguish their prominence, and soon their prominence became such that every European country established companies, battalions, and even regiments of grenadiers. The British grenadier regiment even today is the crack outfit of the army and is the honor guard in all parades.

REVIVED BY UNION

At the beginning of the 19th Century with the introduction of long range guns and greater accuracy of rifles, the grenade fell into disuse. It was revived by the Union army in the war between the states when a concern in New York started manufacturing round cast-iron bombs weighing five pounds.

At the siege of Port Arthur in 1904 during the Russo-Japanese War, the Japanese instituted their first use of grenades. The Russians being unprepared for this type of warfare had to improvise their own. They picked up empty artillery cases from the battlefield, filled them with gun cotton and a fuse, and used them to great advantage. The success obtained by the use of grenades in this engagement led to the invention of many new standard types and their subsequent adoption by many armies.

But prior to World War I, few besides the Germans had any conception of the great use that this weapon was to have in the coming war. This placed the Allies at a great disadvantage during the early stages until their grenades were developed and personnel trained to use them. The German potato masher received the greatest prominence, and today it is still one of the most effective. It consists of a tin cylinder and a long wooden handle which makes it easy to throw.

The British at first were forced to improvise their own grenades on the front line. One of these makeshift types, "harbush," a tin can filled with nuts, bolts, screws, rocks, etc., with a fused block of TNT. Later a handle was added, and the weapon was called the "harbush." It was not long, however, before the famous Mills Bomb was manufactured (and copied by France), and today the British have the greatest variety of bombs and grenades.

Every country now produces a wide assortment, usually of three kinds: (1) offensive—light, easy to throw, usually of tin or glass with a chemical filler, has a stinging effect; (2) defensive—heavy, shorter range, the frag-

Noted Artist Sketches Cartoons of O. C. Life

'Mickey' Bach Rated Among Leaders Of Sports Cartooning

Last week the BAYONET introduced to its readers O. C. Mel Casson as one of its eminent cartoon contributors. This week we are presenting L. M. Bach, a noted sports cartoonist of the Third Student Training Regiment, who has been sketching for this paper the rick-kickings cartoons dealing with the candidate life on the reservation.

Before coming into the Army Lt. Bach was sports cartoonist for the Minneapolis Star-Journal and was one of the foremost cartoonists of the nation. The fact that he is included in "Who's Who" is some evidence of his national reputation.

The artist holds a baccalaureate and post-graduate degree from the University of Wisconsin. After graduation he was ill-fated for a widely-known advertising agency in Wisconsin.

For seven years he was associated with the Minneapolis Star-Journal, and during that time he was one of the most popular cartoonists of the nation. His work was published in the Minneapolis paper, Lt. Bach covered the spring training activities of the Minnesota Twins and the St. Paul Saints.

apols Millers in Texas. In the course of one of these assignments, he crossed the border into Mexico where he made bust sketches of high-ranking Mexican officials for publication. These sketches were similar to the artistic portraits he did for the BAYONET with Major General George C. Allen, commander of the Infantry School; Brig. General G. H. Weems, assistant commander; Colonel H. P. Perrine, executive officer; and Col. Robert H. Lord, commanding officer of the Third Student Training Regiment, as subjects. These sketches were recently very highly complimented by Norman Rockwell, the noted illustrator, during his visit to Fort Benning.

After his induction into the Army Lt. Bach was engaged in public relations work at Camp Roberts, Calif., but was given an honorable discharge along with other men past 28 years of age when the Army determined to make such a move.

WITH CHICAGO SUN

Lt. Bach went back to his job in Minnesota, later joining the staff of the Chicago Sun when it was founded by Marshall Field. However, eight weeks later he was recalled by the Army, and in January 1942 was sent to Fort Benning, Mo., where he served with an intelligence platoon. He was engaged in preparing charts and sketches for presentation lectures and topographical sketches for the intelligence unit appointed to officer candidate school at Fort Benning last June. He graduated in September and was immediately assigned to his present duties with the Third Student Training Regiment.

Mess Rated "Excellent"

Cigarettes, Money
Given Personnel

As a reward for having had the best mess hall in the First Battalion, First Student Training Regiment, during the past month, Mess Hall No. 1 has been presented with an "E" for excellence and each member of the personnel received a carton of cigarettes and a five-dollar bill.

The award is made on the basis of daily inspections, including kitchen, pantry, dining room, general police of the mess hall inside and out, and neatness and cleanliness of personnel.

Presentation of all awards are made by Lt. Col. Wilfred Jackson, battalion commander, in a ceremony which is described as being "almost as impressive as a West Point graduation."

Military snap and precision mark the ceremonies, carrying out Jackson's idea that cooks, table waiters, and kitchen police should not forget that they are first and always soldiers.

The excellent reputation of the First Battalion Mess among student and faculty officers alike is a tribute to the wholesome spirit of friendly rivalry between the members of all mess halls under the sponsorship and guidance of the staff. The mess officer, 1st Lt. George J. Crump, assistant mess officer, The idea may well be carried back to the country as student officers return to their own units on the completion of their courses here, TIS officers are the exception.

Mess Hall No. 1 is under the supervision of Staff Sgt. Deas, and the following members: cooks: T. V. Hillum, T. V. Law, T. V. Allen, Pfc. Toppin, Wilson L. White, and Pvt. Washington; waiters: Pfc. Clark, Bullock, Livingston, and Pfc. Johnson; Bryant, James, Griffin, Richardson, Smith, Thompson D., Wilson E., and McKinney; kitchen police: Pfc. Brewer and Green, and Pfc. Gay and Sullivan.

O. C. Schools Supply Third Of Army Officers

Herding the Army's democratic stream of Officer Candidate Schools, which commissions soldiers after service in the ranks, the War Department reveals that about one-third of the officers in the Army now are graduates of O. C. S., such as Benning's Infantry School.

The largest proportion of officers commissioned through Officer Candidate Schools, the War Department said, have received their gold bars within the last six months.

Almost one half of the total officer strength of the Army today came from the National Guard and organized reserves. Up to the end of 1942, 13,561 recent graduates of O. C. S. had received promotions from the initial grade of second lieutenant. Of these, 12,185 are now first lieutenants, 387 are captains, seven are majors, and one is a lieutenant colonel.

10th Armored Men Military Maids Enjoy Dance

One hundred and fifty officers and men of the 10th Armored Division's Headquarters Company played hosts to the Columbus Military Maids at a dance held at the Georgia Service Power Company hall Thursday evening.

A dual celebration was in order. The company members presented Mrs. Hugh Roberts, head of the Military Maids, with a gift celebrating her birthday. The occasion also honored the basketball team who won their opening game 43 to 16 in the Cusseta League on Wednesday.

Chaperons for the evening were Mrs. Hugh Roberts, Mrs. J. G. Strickland, Miss Waver Colbert, Mrs. Winifred H. Baker, Miss Thelma Mann and Mrs. Eleanor Reideheimer.

Capt. C. F. Meinzinger and Lts. Steve Lang, Charles Craig and Russell Lombardy of Headquarters Company were present.

Music was furnished by the 10th Armored Regiment's dance orchestra.

LOSE SOMETHING SGT. McDONALD?

Max Sends Margie Hart Message of Condolence

Judging by the stuff we read these days, about everything has happened to Margie Hart, the burlesque strip-leader, who has been laid up in Kansas City with a bum leg from a downstairs fall.

About now, another thing is happening—she's getting a letter from a dog.

The dog is Max, the jumping, parachuting mascot of the 505th Parachute Infantry, who, among things broken, has also a mangled leg, the result of having been hit by a 2 1-2 ton truck.

THE LETTER

"Dear Margie Hart:

"As one broken legged convalescent to another, I want to let you know I sympathize in every way.

"You fell downstairs, but me—I have made eight successful parachute jumps with my outfit, the 505th Parachute Infantry, then walked across the road and was smacked in the region of most of your charms by a truck. I finished up looking more like an accordion than a dog.

"I am writing to you to tell you that they have published my picture so much in the regimental newspaper, I think the readers should have some relief. Therefore, would you please send me a photo of yourself, so I can give it to the editor.

"One broken leg is very like another, I hear, but I somehow feel that the boys would find yours more interesting for a change.

"Please,

Sgt. MAX, Mascot
505th Parachute Inf.
Fort Benning, Ga.

"PS: In case you have a picture taken BEFORE your leg was broken, send it.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Veterinaries attending the big dog claim this letter is evidence that he's on the road to recovery.

Or, at least, it means his "social" secretary, self-appointed Staff Sgt. Harry E. Anderson, of Portland, Ore., is reacting normally.

Meanwhile Max is making the editorial page of the nation's press. The following was clipped from a Spartanburg, S. C., paper.

"Throw physic to the dogs; I'll have none of it," said Macbeth. Well that is what the Army doctors and surgeons are doing to Max at Fort Benning.

"Max is the famous canine paratrooper of the 505th Parachute Infantry who, after making eight successful jumps from planes, ran afoul of a 2 1-2 ton truck and suffered a fractured skull and a broken jaw. It looked like "tags" for Max, but Army surgeons came to his rescue, and, though he has lost 20 pounds, he is recuperating and may live to go up in planes and perhaps to continue jumping from them.

"The story of Max's misfortune made the headlines of the press, and from all sections of the country came messages of sympathy. Surgeons made suggestions. Artists offered to paint his picture. Men, women and children were interested and even other dogs sent messages of condolence through their masters and mistresses.

"That all goes to prove the great affection men feel for dogs. It is because men know that dogs possess a loyalty greater than they. Men know that dogs are truthful, brave, trustworthy. That is why some woman said 'the more I know of men the better I like dogs.'

"Max is as famous as a Hollywood actor and his fan mail is so large that a staff sergeant at Fort Benning has volunteered to

New Headquarters Annex To House Civilian Personnel

In order to consolidate further the functions of post headquarters, a new addition is being constructed to present quarters to house the civilian personnel branch. Brig. Gen. Walter S. Fulton, commanding general, has announced.

The new addition is being added to the recently constructed wing across from the Catholic Chapel on Sigieros street and will be 98 by 51 feet. Work is being rushed under the direction of Post Engineer, Colonel Albert W. Bain.

The civilian personnel branch is under the direction of Lt. Raymond A. Perkins and administers the work of the several thousand civilian employees of the station complement. There are about 70 employees in the administrative branch.

The entire headquarters building is undergoing changes and when completed practically every office will have been changed to meet the expanding requirements caused by the growth of the post.

Fear, Anger, Self-Sacrifice Were Reactions to Jap Attack

Wounded Direct
Stretcher-Bearers
To Injured Comrades

Fear, followed in turn by anger and a "don't give a damn" attitude plus a spirit of self sacrifice on the part of Americans were the conflicting emotions greeting the treacherous Jap attack on Pearl Harbor, according to one eye-witness account.

Candidate Lester J. Bridg of Second Company, Second Student Training Regiment, who was stationed at Hickam Field from Nov. 10, 1941, until last September, declares that he along with his companions in arms were first scared then mad, and then coolly nonchalant when the Japanese came over Pearl Harbor.

As for the wounded, O. C. Bridg said that it was surprising how the former reacted.

"They told the stretcher-bearers to work on the other men first," he said. "I saw everything like every body wanted the other guy to be helped first."

The barracks at Hickam were under construction when he arrived there.

"I saw 'em go up and I watched 'em come down," Bridg says.

WAS IN BARRACKS

"I was in the barracks when the Japs came over," he relates. "A lot of the boys were out taking a last smoke before going in to work. We were within 50 feet of the hangars, and the men were on the field. The first warning they heard was the sound of the Jap planes. They didn't even know planes were around until then."

"When those of us in the barracks heard the noise we looked out of the windows. When we saw what was happening we streaked for the supply room, grabbing our rifles on the way. We broke open our handbags and scooped out handbags. Some of them went back to the barracks and started firing while the rest of us began blazing away from the parade ground. The noise was terrific."

TOO CLOSE

"After a while the Jap strafing was coming too close, and we started for the barracks, to fire from there. When I was almost in the door, the kid in front of me fell over dead and the boy on my left was wounded. The confusion of a bomb hitting the barracks right out of my hands and threw me through the door into the barracks. It felt like my insides were going to explode. While I was going to a sergeant standing near me fell over. A bullet came in through the wall, penetrated two partitions and got him."

Bridg said he wants to finish the course here, get a few months' training in the States, and then go back to the Pacific. "I lived with most of them for two years, and I saw many of them die. I feel I got a crack at the Japs come."

Author Of One Of Best 1940 Plays Is With Academic Regiment

Author of 30 one-act plays and several three-act plays, Pfc. Robert Finch now is a member of Company B, Academic Regiment.

In 1940 one of his plays, "Summer Comes to the Diamond" was included in a published volume of the ten best plays of the year.

Private Finch has been a free lance writer and in 1941 was granted a $1,000 Rockefeller fellowship at the University of North Carolina. There he wrote a book "Survey of Drama in North Carolina," which was published with a foreword by Archibald Henderson, official biographer of George Bernard Shaw. He also taught radio playwriting while at Chapel Hill.

Besides writing, he has had several minor parts in productions starring such personages as Helen Vinson and Preston Foster. In 1935 he was stage manager for the production "The Lord of the Flies." He has also had parts in the "March of Time" broadcast.

Enlisted men of the Army of the United States are offered for the first time opportunity for appointment to the United States Military Academy, according to an announcement received at Fort Benning.

One hundred and eighty appointments from the enlisted ranks are authorized. Previously the policy had been to select them from the Regular Army.

The military record of Colonel Frank J. Vida, Commanding Officer of the newly activated Provisional Truck Regiment, covers such a span of activity and achievement that every member of his organization may find inspiration in learning of the exploits of this Regular Army Infantry officer, his colleagues declare.

This career had its beginning in June 1916, when the young enlisted Private Frank J. Vida, of New York City, soon after entering the service he was sent to the Mexican border where he received his initial experience with our troops.

Going abroad in 1918, as a member of the famous 27th Division, this soldier, who had advanced to the grade of first sergeant, participated in one big major campaign after another. He was commissioned in October 1918. He was in the thick of the battle during the Somme offensive, the struggle of Ypres-Lys, and the defense sector. One of his greatest feats was recorded while fighting the Hindenburg Line. Making an attack on this great fortification, his superior company officers were killed and he was painfully wounded. Ignoring medical attention, he took command of his company and held the gains until, however, that would best help him in his chosen calling. Upon leaving college he went with Universal Pictures and later to Paramount.

"Wanted Wings" he directed the orchestra. He played the Juvenile lead in "The Son of Monte Cristo" and to further prove his versatility he served as a singing part in "South of the Border." Sandwiched in with his other duties, Pritchard found time to serve as program director for Radio Station XEML, San Diego, as the Army routine of daylight till dark puts no new strain on his nervous system.

Returning to the States, he spent the next year at military posts in Puerto Rico and Panama, and it was at the latter station that he met and married Miss Betty C. Conner, daughter of Major General Fox Conner, Operations Officer for General John J. Pershing during the First World War. Lieutenant General Dwight D. Eisenhower, then a captain, was among those present at the wedding.

Colonel Vida's first contact with Fort Benning came when, after graduating from the Tank 15th Tank Battalion during the years 1927 to 1931. While here he graduated from the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia.

Moving to Alaska for a three-year tour of duty, Colonel Vida, at the expiration of that time, returned to the States and was assigned to the Command and General Staff school, from which he was graduated in 1938.

BACK TO BENNING

Another stay at Fort Benning, this time with the First Division, brought to his appointment as Chief of the Operations Group, of the Automotive Section, the Infantry school.

With the activation of the Provisional Truck Regiment on December 18, 1942, Colonel Vida was placed in command and started his new duties with the same spirit that has won for him the American DSC, the British DCM, the French Croix de Guerre with the Gold Star, the Purple Heart with the Oak Leaf Cluster, the Mexican Border Service Medal, the Wolf War Medal with Battle Clasp, the present Defense Medal, and the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Living with Colonel Vida at Fort Benning, at the present time, are his wife, three daughters, Pauline, Virginia and Beatrice, and one son, Fox.

Pvt. James Thomason, noted football official for the last 12 years, has been inducted into the Army and is now stationed at Camp Crocker, Md. This year Thomason officiated the Alabama-Georgia Tech, Duke-Wake Forest, Auburn-Tulane and Auburn-Georgia Tech games. He was scheduled to referee the New Year's Day Orange Bowl game between Boston College and Alabama, but Uncle Sam said, "No."

The fortunes of war have reunited two former Vanderbilt University grid stars at the Army Air Base, Smyrna, Tenn. Lt. Carl Hinkle and Cpl. Sam Agee played together on the 1934 and '37 Vanderbilt teams. Hinkle was All-American in 1937.

Life prepares Picture Essay

Featuring O. C. Course Here

A full length feature picture essay on the Infantry officer course is being prepared this week for Life Magazine by two members of the magazine's staff, Miss Gertrude Epstein and Mr. Myron Davis.

Miss Epstein arrived at Fort Benning early last week from New York City where she has been a reporter and research specialist for Life for four years. She is responsible for the background and the accuracy of the story on the officer candidate course.

Davis is a photographer from Life's Washington staff. He has been with that publication for almost three years, of which a few months were spent in New York and a year and a half in the Chicago office. He has been in Washington for the past year.

EXPERT PHOTOGRAPH

Davis has been taking pictures all his life either as an amateur or a professional. A native of Chicago, he went to the University of Chicago as a free lance photographer. He worked for the Black Star Picture Syndicate and did publicity work for the University of Chicago before going to work for Life. He graduated from college in 1940.

Many of the magazine's feature pictures have been taken by Davis. Among his most recent big assignments have been the story on the opening of Congress last week, and the spread on the Air Corps, which appeared in Life a few weeks ago. Some of his photographs which appeared on the cover of the magazine recently include pictures of Nelson Rockefeller, General Somervell of the Services of Support, Admiral Leahy, James Byrnes, and the Army Nurse. He has photographed the President many times.

During the month of November, Fort Benning continued to play a large part in the salvage program of the Fourth Service Command, according to figures released this week in Atlanta and at Fort Benning.

From Atlanta, headquarters of the Fourth Service Command, comes word that approximately 6,000,000 pounds, or 4,000 tons (salvage), were collected, classified and shipped to war plants of the nation by posts and camps in the southeast, comprising the Service Command, during November.

Of this amount, 5,000,000 pounds were assembled and disposed of on definite quantities of metal, and consisted largely of metals from small pieces of junk to truck bodies and other metals stripped from motor vehicles which were no longer serviceable.

BENNING FIGURES

The part Fort Benning played in this program is illustrated in estimates disclosed by Lt. Col. James R. Johnson, post inspector, who reported that a total of 345 tons of scrap metal were collected at the Fort Benning reservation during the month of November.

Iron collected, such as galvanized waste tanks, wrought iron and steel, light sheet iron, totaled 550,440 pounds. Tin cans collected totaled 79,360 pounds, according to Col. Johnson. Among the non-ferrous metals gathered for sale and re-use in the war effort were 30,470 pounds of lead; 6,582 pounds of brass; 7,960 pounds of copper and 5,605 pounds of aluminum, totaling 45,537 pounds. During the last eight months of 1942, Fort Benning ranked among the top-night Army posts in the collection of scrap metal. Additional emphasis has been placed on the salvage of bones and grease with the result that during December, 55 tons of war surplus and bones were salvaged at the post and 12 and a half tons of grease were collected.

Fourth Service Command reported, in this connection, that about 3,000,000 pounds of salvage came under the "indefinite" classification such as bones and kitchen fats and grease. In the collections reported by Fourth Service Command camps.

A serviceman may designate his wife, child, parent, brother or sister as beneficiaries of his national life service insurance. The insured has the right to change his beneficiary, but only within the foregoing class.

John Harris Directs Show For TIS Unit

When men of the Sixth Company, Third Student Training Regiment of the Infantry School were granted permission to stage a company show and party recently, the tactical officers were surprised at the rapid fashion in which the performance took form and substance.

Upon checking up they discovered that the man who had been placed in charge was, until he enlisted last July, a well known figure in show business and, in fact, a producer in his own right. He is known as Candidate John H. Pritchard, but back in California and throughout the world of show business he is better known as John D. Harris, "the Smiling Troubadour."

Candidate Pritchard, or John Harris, is working harder than ever before and for less money. He and his mates in the Sixth Company are being trained as officers for America's ever-growing Army. In Pritchard's words, "The Smiling Troubadour" will be wearing the gold bars of a second lieutenant.

Although he is only 25, Pritchard has been in show business for 14 years. He was practically born into it, for his mother was a well known operatic singer, Maria Lagana. At the age of 11 he was killed as a child master of ceremonies. Since then he has explored just about every corner of the show world—moving pictures, radio, orchestra leader, singer, instrumental soloist and producer.

PRODUCED SHOWS

For the last year before he donned Uncle Sam's khaki, Pritchard produced and staged entertainments at Army camps on the West Coast for Camp Shows, Inc. After looking at thousands of soldiers night after night, he came to the conclusion that he belonged on the other side of the footlights. He got the uniform all right, but upon being sent to Camp Carson, Colo., for training he was almost immediately made assistant to the 88th Division's service officer with the result that he soldiered all day and was showman half the night, being called on to assist in arranging various types of camp entertainments at Carson and nearby camps.

However, since he was assigned to the School for Officer Candidates, Pritchard's life is just about 100 per cent military. Like most of the other picked men who are in the thick of the battle during the Somme offensive, the struggle of Ypres-Lys, and the defense sector. One of his greatest feats was recorded while fighting the Hindenburg Line. Making an attack on this great fortification, his superior company officers were killed and he was painfully wounded. Ignoring medical attention, he took command of his company and held the gains until, however, that would best help him in his chosen calling. Fort Benning's Garrison library has resumed operations and is open daily from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m.

None of the 6,000 books were seriously damaged in the recent fire, and many new titles have been added since the reading rooms were closed. Included in this group are some of the current bests in fiction and non-fiction such as "Seventh Cross," "One Destiny," "Three Bambi's," "The Raiders," "Morgan and Skinner's 'When We Were Young and Gay'."

Current newspapers and approximately 20 magazines are also received regularly by the library.

With Benning Officials

Fort Benning authorities seeking a curb on vice in this area well as the assurance of Solicitor-General Ed Wohlwendler, Jr., that Columbus and Muscogee county officers are since the determination to root out those agencies that have most encouraged prostitution.

Accompanied by John G. Newberry, chief of Columbus police, and J. W. Satterfield, Muscogee county police chief, he conferred Tuesday with Maj. James A. Lovelless, medical inspector, and Russell H. Hammargren, public relations officer.

The Benning officers promised cooperation and all available facilities at the Fort, and the army camps on the West Coast for Camp Shows, Inc. After looking at thousands of soldiers night after night, he came to the conclusion that he belonged on the other side of the footlights. He got the uniform all right, but upon being sent to Camp Carson, Colo., for training he was almost immediately made assistant to the 88th Division's service officer with the result that he soldiered all day and was showman half the night, being called on to assist in arranging various types of camp entertainments at Carson and nearby camps.

However, since he was assigned to the School for Officer Candidates, Pritchard's life is just about 100 per cent military. Like most of the other picked men who are in the thick of the battle during the Somme offensive, the struggle of Ypres-Lys, and the defense sector. One of his greatest feats was recorded while fighting the Hindenburg Line. Making an attack on this great fortification, his superior company officers were killed and he was painfully wounded. Ignoring medical attention, he took command of his company and held the gains until, however, that would best help him in his chosen calling. Upon leaving college he went with Universal Pictures and later to Paramount.

"Wanted Wings" he directed the orchestra. He played the Juvenile lead in "The Son of Monte Cristo" and to further prove his versatility he served as a singing part in "South of the Border." Sandwiched in with his other duties, Pritchard found time to serve as program director for Radio Station XEML, San Diego, as the Army routine of daylight till dark puts no new strain on his nervous system.

Returning to the States, he spent the next year at military posts in Puerto Rico and Panama, and it was at the latter station that he met and married Miss Betty C. Conner, daughter of Major General Fox Conner, Operations Officer for General John J. Pershing during the First World War. Lieutenant General Dwight D. Eisenhower, then a captain, was among those present at the wedding.

Colonel Vida's first contact with Fort Benning came when, after graduating from the Tank 15th Tank Battalion during the years 1927 to 1931. While here he graduated from the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Georgia.

Moving to Alaska for a three-year tour of duty, Colonel Vida, at the expiration of that time, returned to the States and was assigned to the Command and General Staff school, from which he was graduated in 1938.

BACK TO BENNING

Another stay at Fort Benning, this time with the First Division, brought to his appointment as Chief of the Operations Group, of the Automotive Section, the Infantry school.

With the activation of the Provisional Truck Regiment on December 18, 1942, Colonel Vida was placed in command and started his new duties with the same spirit that has won for him the American DSC, the British DCM, the French Croix de Guerre with the Gold Star, the Purple Heart with the Oak Leaf Cluster, the Mexican Border Service Medal, the Wolf War Medal with Battle Clasp, the present Defense Medal, and the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Living with Colonel Vida at Fort Benning, at the present time, are his wife, three daughters, Pauline, Virginia and Beatrice, and one son, Fox.

Pvt. James Thomason, noted football official for the last 12 years, has been inducted into the Army and is now stationed at Camp Crocker, Md. This year Thomason officiated the Alabama-Georgia Tech, Duke-Wake Forest, Auburn-Tulane and Auburn-Georgia Tech games. He was scheduled to referee the New Year's Day Orange Bowl game between Boston College and Alabama, but Uncle Sam said, "No."

The fortunes of war have reunited two former Vanderbilt University grid stars at the Army Air Base, Smyrna, Tenn. Lt. Carl Hinkle and Cpl. Sam Agee played together on the 1934 and '37 Vanderbilt teams. Hinkle was All-American in 1937.

Life prepares Picture Essay

Featuring O. C. Course Here

A full length feature picture essay on the Infantry officer course is being prepared this week for Life Magazine by two members of the magazine's staff, Miss Gertrude Epstein and Mr. Myron Davis.

Miss Epstein arrived at Fort Benning early last week from New York City where she has been a reporter and research specialist for Life for four years. She is responsible for the background and the accuracy of the story on the officer candidate course.

Davis is a photographer from Life's Washington staff. He has been with that publication for almost three years, of which a few months were spent in New York and a year and a half in the Chicago office. He has been in Washington for the past year.

EXPERT PHOTOGRAPH

Davis has been taking pictures all his life either as an amateur or a professional. A native of Chicago, he went to the University of Chicago as a free lance photographer. He worked for the Black Star Picture Syndicate and did publicity work for the University of Chicago before going to work for Life. He graduated from college in 1940.

Many of the magazine's feature pictures have been taken by Davis. Among his most recent big assignments have been the story on the opening of Congress last week, and the spread on the Air Corps, which appeared in Life a few weeks ago. Some of his photographs which appeared on the cover of the magazine recently include pictures of Nelson Rockefeller, General Somervell of the Services of Support, Admiral Leahy, James Byrnes, and the Army Nurse. He has photographed the President many times.

During the month of November, Fort Benning continued to play a large part in the salvage program of the Fourth Service Command, according to figures released this week in Atlanta and at Fort Benning.

From Atlanta, headquarters of the Fourth Service Command, comes word that approximately 6,000,000 pounds, or 4,000 tons (salvage), were collected, classified and shipped to war plants of the nation by posts and camps in the southeast, comprising the Service Command, during November.

Of this amount, 5,000,000 pounds were assembled and disposed of on definite quantities of metal, and consisted largely of metals from small pieces of junk to truck bodies and other metals stripped from motor vehicles which were no longer serviceable.

BENNING FIGURES

The part Fort Benning played in this program is illustrated in estimates disclosed by Lt. Col. James R. Johnson, post inspector, who reported that a total of 345 tons of scrap metal were collected at the Fort Benning reservation during the month of November.

Iron collected, such as galvanized waste tanks, wrought iron and steel, light sheet iron, totaled 550,440 pounds. Tin cans collected totaled 79,360 pounds, according to Col. Johnson. Among the non-ferrous metals gathered for sale and re-use in the war effort were 30,470 pounds of lead; 6,582 pounds of brass; 7,960 pounds of copper and 5,605 pounds of aluminum, totaling 45,537 pounds. During the last eight months of 1942, Fort Benning ranked among the top-night Army posts in the collection of scrap metal. Additional emphasis has been placed on the salvage of bones and grease with the result that during December, 55 tons of war surplus and bones were salvaged at the post and 12 and a half tons of grease were collected.

Fourth Service Command reported, in this connection, that about 3,000,000 pounds of salvage came under the "indefinite" classification such as bones and kitchen fats and grease. In the collections reported by Fourth Service Command camps.

O. C. Proves Archaeology Can Provide the Thrills

Officer Candidate School being the kind of catch-all it is, you'd expect almost every sort of guy to show his hand and eventually he does. Not a glassblower, perhaps, or a seal-tamer, but anything within reason.

Even at O. C. S., though, you just can't blink off an archaeologist. That's right, the word was archaeologist. He's John Corbett, and his gigs (just one or two so far, it's only fair to say) are posted over in the 23rd Company, Third Student Training Regiment. He takes a large-size foxhole, being six four, and has a sort of chop capacity you'd expect. He's parked archaeology for the duration and it wasn't too easy to wrangle his story from him.

He talks about digging down into some ancient civilization as another man might talk about cutting a die or assembling an engine. He's a scientist, which means being a careful up-to-date but not a careless taken him to corners of the Americas that most people have heard about only from the Sunday supplements.

3 COLLEGES

Corbett has Princeton, the University of Southern California, and Columbia behind him, but he's willing to forget it if you like. He's never had any of the about what he wanted to do. When he was asked the inevitable question at the age of twelve or so, he never mumbled a "submarine" or "a motor cycle cop," but piped up brightly, "an archaeologist, sir."

The youngster stuck to his guns and you might say that he's made the grade. A job of work like this to recall is a trip into northwestern Ecuador for the Ecuadorian Government. Seems they suspected a fellow up there was plotting an important archaeological site and so he was sent to investigate. Corbett and a college friend were commissioned to investigate and their wives insisted on going along.

BARES FRAUD

They're building a road and an airport in that part of the country now, but at that time it was pure jungle and the party had to get there by canoe and packhorse. The area was so inaccessible that a two-bit Emperor or Jones was running things just about as he pleased. To get to the main point, Corbett put the finger on the phoney miner and rescued some important museum pieces which are now on display in Ecuador's museums. If you should ever get down that way, be sure to drop in and see them.
